Mc GILLFreaks in Gray Flannel

It is the consensus of critics that Southern novelists have a penchant for writing about freaks.

Flannery O'Connor, whose novel "The Violent Bear It Away" presently is receiving unanimous critical acclaim, even from those who deplore and obviously do not understand its characters, thinks Southerners write about freaks because "they can still recognize one."

The men in gray flannel suits who, in one dilemma or another, occupy the pages of so many of today's novels, are likely to be freaks, too, Miss O'Connor thinks.

In a discussion of Southern writing the young Georgia novelist and short-story writer who has attained a first-rate national reputation in both fields, analyzes not merely her own approach but perhaps that of the South's and nation's literary Everest, William Faulkner.

"The region," she says, "is something the writer has to use in order to suggest what transcends it. His gaze must extend beyond mere problems until it touches that realm of mystery which is the concern of prophets . . . it is what is left over, after everything explainable has been explained, that makes a story worth writing."

Sense of Evil

Certainly the stuff of Faulkner is in the belief that in the South, where most people yet believe in the doctrine of original sin, the sense of evil is just strong enough to make them skeptical about most modern solutions no matter "how long we embrace them. We are held by a sense of mystery, however much against our will."

And what about the prophetic freaks of Southern literature?

"They are not," Miss O'Connor says, "images of the man in the street . . . they are images of the man forced out to meet the extremes of his own nature."

Once this sense of evil and of mystery has evaporated, the Southern writers may, says Miss O'Connor, "be writing about men in gray flannel suits and may have lost their ability to see that these gentlemen are even greater freaks than what we are writing about now."

So much for what the best young Southern novelist of our time thinks about her region's literature.

There also is some current criticism of Allen Tate, a long-time acolyte and choir boy at the altars of Ezra Pound and T. S. Eliot. Mr. Tate, who was one of the Fugitive-Agrarian school of poets and essayists at Vanderbilt University some 40 years ago, has declared Stephen Vincent Benet's "John Brown's Body" to be a fourth-rate poem and Mr. Benet himself a fourth-rate poet.

Obscure Critic

Mr. Tate, himself an obscure critic, save in the small circle of esoteric symbolists who write poetry which only members of the exclusive club can understand, has unintentionally focused some uncomfortable light on the utter sterility of about 90 per cent of the Fugitive-Agrarians whose output of poetry and novels is nil. Their wistful yearning for a return of the Agrarian civilization (possible really only in a slave economy), unhappily and to their dismay, has become the shore dimly seen of the White Citizens Councils intellectual apologists.

Karl Shapiro, in an article on T. S. Eliot's impact on criticism, said, "... the false dualisms set up between art and social action are symptomatic of much of the insanity of modern criticism . . . it was these dualisms . . . which led criticism into a squirrel cage where it still performs so brilliantly for its own amusement."

This would seem to apply to Mr. Tate's remarks. The warm and rewarding writing of "John Brown's Body" and the characters so clearly drawn continue to live in new editions. The last time I looked at the board, Pound, common, and Eliot, preferred, were selling off in a bear market.

Macmillan

TomorrowArriving to Confer
On Atomic BanBy STEWART HENSLEY
WASHINGTON (UPI)—British Prime Minister Macmillan will fly here Saturday for crucial talks with President Eisenhower designed to resolve U.S.-British differences over Russia's new nuclear test ban proposal.

With dramatic suddenness, the White House announced Thursday that Macmillan is coming here at the President's suggestion to discuss "the latest phase of the Geneva nuclear test negotiations." Their talks, a Big Two Western summit conference, will get underway Monday.

Britain and the United States do not see eye-to-eye on the new Soviet proposal. The British inclination is to accept it without too much argument. The U.S. inclination is to offer a compromise plan or reject it.

The gravity of the situation was underlined by the fact that the leaders of the Anglo-American al-

PRISON HOSTAGES MARCH TO FREEDOM

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI)—Two convicts bargaining for their freedom with the lives of 18 hostages gave up a harrowing 24-hour siege within state prison walls Thursday released their captives and surrendered.

Both finally accepted a written agreement signed by Tennessee's commissioner of corrections guaranteeing on "solemn oath" to furnish them attorneys for filing writs of habeas corpus and a review of their cases. It promised no reprisals nor punishment in solitary confinement if they ended the siege without bloodshed.

The convicts, both desperate and brazen, demanded earlier that they be furnished a getaway car and a chance against police guns in a "fair fight." Otherwise they threatened to put the hostages against a wall and shoot them.

State prison officials, backed up by guns and tear gas, refused all demands except the terms finally agreed upon, and only after face-to-face meetings in the prison compound and the work of a prison psychiatrist and a prisoner "go-between" as intermediaries did the convicts back down.

They released a total of 20 hostages—two of them sent out earlier when they became ill—and 22 men, including the 18 hostages, the psychiatrist, the go-between and the convicts, came out. The psychiatrist carried the convicts' pistols.

One of the convicts, psychopathic kidnaper Charles Raymond Farra, held out on the agreement for four tense hours after his partner, Robert Rivera, agreed to it. "CAME TO DIE"

Farra, once classified as criminally insane, had vowed "I came in here to die, and I'm going to die." Rivera pleaded with him to accept and at last he did.

Collapse of the siege, centered in a deputy warden's office facing on the central prison compound, followed a full day and night of threats by the convicts to shoot the hostages—among them three women.

In late afternoon, 24½ hours after the convicts seized the hostages and holed up in the porticoed office—with sandwiches, water, coffee and cigarettes—the end came.

The hostages walked out first, in groups—seven men first, then another seven men, Assistant Deputy Warden Carl Burns, Rivera, another hostage and a lawyer carrying the convicts' smuggled pistols by the barrels, the three women and finally Farra.

"VERY NICE"

Farra, smoking a cigarette, stopped once in his walk across the compound and spat on the ground.

"They were very nice to us," one of the women, Mrs. Howard

U.S. Displays 1944 Pact
Letting Allies Run Berlin

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The United States charged Soviet Premier Khrushchev Thursday with trying to perpetrate a "hoax on world public opinion" by contending that Allied-occupied West Berlin is really on territory belonging to Communist East Germany.

The State department issued an announcement sharply challenging this Communist argument. It accompanied it with a photographic copy of the 1944 Allied protocol in which the Russians agreed that the Berlin area would be entirely separate from the Soviet zone in Germany under a "special system of occupation" by the major Allies.

The department rejected the argument repeatedly advanced by Khrushchev that West Berlin is "on the territory of" the puppet East German Government.

The formal statement charged only the East German Communists with propaganda along this line. But press officer Lincoln White said later that Khrushchev was equally guilty of trying to pull this "hoax."

"Mr. Khrushchev has made these same points on numerous occasions," White said. "This statement applies equally well to Khrushchev as to the East German regime and anyone else who sings this same theme."

1,200 Pay Tribute
To Miss Jarrell

By HERMAN HANCOCK

Representatives of business, government, education and civic organizations Thursday night paid tribute to Miss Ira Jarrell for 16 years' service as superintendent of Atlanta schools.

More than 1,200 persons attended the 54th annual dinner of the Atlanta Public School Teachers' Assn. at the Dinkler Plaza Hotel at which Miss Jarrell was the honor guest.

Miss Jarrell is scheduled to retire as superintendent July 1. Under board rules, she could accept a principal's post and continue her affiliation with schools for another two years.

Half a score of persons lauded her "selfless, efficient service and dynamic leadership." The audience stood and applauded after Roger Derthick, association president, presented her a check for $2,500, a gift from teachers and other employees of the school system.

Responding to the accolades, Miss Jarrell promised to "continue fighting for the children and teachers for whom I always fight."

She has been with the Atlanta school system in various capacities 44 years.

Open Schools Backed

Districts Tied 5 to 5Full-Panel Hearings
Wind UpBy BRUCE GALPHIN
Constitution Staff Writer
GAINESVILLE — The Sibley Committee wound up its full-panel hearings here Thursday with the strongest local opinion support it has heard in 10 congressional districts.

Open-school advocates held a 5-1 edge in the 18-county Ninth Congressional District.

Witnesses supporting local option totaled 141. Only 36 said they would be willing to close all schools to prevent integration.

HOW STATE STANDS

Thursday's hearing thus brought the state's congressional districts to a 5-5 tie on the issue. The Fourth, Fifth, Seventh, Ninth and Tenth districts have supported option and the First, Second, Third, Sixth and Eighth closings.

The final full hearing—two subcommittee sessions will be conducted next Thursday in Columbus and Atlanta — also demonstrated the vastly different problems faced in various parts of the state.

The Ninth District, in the northeast corner of Georgia, has the smallest Negro population of any in the state.

FEW NEGRO PUPILS

Several of the counties have no Negroes of school age, witnesses reported.

Hall County, host county, provided the biggest voice for local option. Fifty witnesses favored local control, while only four spoke for closing schools.

But the rest of the district was almost solidly behind Hall. Only two counties—Barrow and Jackson—presented majorities with an opposite view, and three—Banks, Gwinnett and Union—were tied.

HEARING ORDERLY

Although there were a few bursts of applause, it was probably the most orderly of the 10 hearings.

As in Atlanta on Wednesday, witnesses from Gainesville on WASHINGTON (AP) — Missouri's Sen. Symington formally put himself into the running for the Democratic presidential nomination Thursday. He ducked primary tests of strength against other contenders.

Symington's announcement — which surprised nobody — was moved up a couple of months. This was believed to stem from concern over headway being made by Sen. Kennedy of Massachusetts.

But at a klieg-lighted news conference packed with applauding backers, the Missouri senator said "it isn't true" that he is acting now because his strategists feel Kennedy is drawing far ahead. He did concede Kennedy appears to be out front at this time.

His decision was made because supporters around the country were pleading with him to hurry

The 5-foot aluminum container hit the boy's back and foot, felling him. The object fell from an Air Force T33 jet trainer.

House Rights Bill
Speeded in SenateBy ALBERT RILEY
Constitution Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — The House gave final approval to its five-point civil rights bill Thursday by a 311 to 109 vote, and the Senate immediately maneuvered to take up the House bill next week.

This procedure will displace a tougher, six-point bill already before the Senate with the relatively milder House bill, the key of which is a voting referee proposal.

As soon as the House bill got to the Senate, Majority Leader Johnson (Tex.) had it read and moved that it be referred to the judiciary committee with instructions that the bill be reported back to the Senate next Tuesday.

By this maneuver, Johnson was observing Senate rules of procedure and preserving the revered committee system, instead of bypassing the judiciary committee as the Senate did in 1957 with a House civil rights bill.

Obviously the Texan also hoped to avoid any further accusations by Southerners that he was conducting a "legislative lynching."

Chairman James O. Eastland (D-Miss.), whose judiciary committee long has been a graveyard for civil rights bills, opposed Johnson's motion and countered with a substitute of his own.

Eastland moved that the bill be sent to his committee without any instructions, which would have

Huge Dog Attacks 7 Children,
Terrorizes 2 Neighborhoods

A large brown dog that reared up on its hind legs and attacked "roaring like a lion" late Thursday bit at least eight persons and created near panic in two wide areas of Atlanta.

One victim, a 7-year-old boy, was admitted to Grady Hospital as result of the savage dog attack.

The dog, described as large as a boxer and shaggy, was feared to have been infected with rabies, police said.

Bystanders beat the growling, snapping beast off his victims, including two 2-year-old children. Seven of those bitten who reported to Grady Hospital for treatment were Negro children under 12. The eighth was a white woman.

Heavily armed police patrols cleared the streets where the attacks occurred. Those who ventured out carried clubs or guns, seeking to kill the dog.

Victims and those who witnessed the attacks said without exception that the large dog "went for the face, rearing up on his hind legs and lunging, snarling and growling."

The dog first appeared in the Forrest avenue, NE, section, then appeared in rapid succession along Cain, Randolph and Irwin street in the Northeast section; then moved over to Connally street, SE, and Washington street, SW.

The rampage lasted less than two hours and the dog disappeared as suddenly as he had appeared. He covered a 10-mile route while patrol cars maneuvered through the area, the officers anxious to get a shot at him.

Willie Clarence Rowe, 10, Negro, of 384 Connally St., SE, said he and James Charles Brock, 10, Negro, of 582 Connally St., SE, were playing with their dog when the large animal appeared suddenly and with a savage growl attacked them.

"I run," Willie Rowe said.

Khrushchev Asks East-West Treaty

PARIS (UPI)—Premier Khrushchev said Thursday that West German militarism was growing "insolent" and called for a non-aggression pact between the Eastern and Western power blocs to ease the threat of war.

Khrushchev was in rare good form as he beat the drums louder than ever for peaceful co-existence and renewed his attacks on German militarism and revenge-seeking which he called a major threat to peace.

Khrushchev spoke at a luncheon in the Paris City Hall after a two-hour meeting in private with President De Gaulle on such subjects as militarism, closer Soviet-French ties, the May 16 summit conference and France's close ties with West Germany.

Outside the city hall where President Eisenhower told a crowd of 50,000 last September, "I love you all," a crowd of nearly the same size massed to meet Khrushchev. Many in the assemblage waved Red flags, wore hammer and sickle buttons and shouted "long live Khrushchev!"

Throughout his speech to the 1,500 dignitaries in City Hall Khrushchev hammered at the same theme that ran through his speeches Wednesday — the Soviet Union and France must unite to prevent a rise of militarism in West Germany.

Thus far there has been no official reaction to his German attacks. In Bonn, officials said in private the statements were trivial but German newspapers gave bannerline display to his remarks.

Khrushchev called for conclusion of a non-aggression pact between the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and the Warsaw Pact which links the Communist East European nations — a pact which eventually would do away with NATO and leave West Germany completely disarmed.

It was the first call for such a pact since the Geneva Foreign Ministers Conference of last summer although Khrushchev mentioned it earlier this year in an address to the Supreme Soviet (Parliament) of the Soviet Union.

Khrushchev ignored De Gaulle's assertion of Wednesday night that the militarism of World War II and Adolf Hitler was dead.

S. Africa Bans All Meetings

Aimed at Blocking Racial Protests

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Prime Minister Hendrik Verwoerd's government has banned all public meetings in large towns throughout the nation in an effort to cripple a growing protest movement against racial laws.

Large police squads carried out swift raids at dawn Thursday against leading Negro, Indian and leftist organizations, seizing papers and arresting some leftist white persons as well as Negroes.

The ban on meetings and the raids is designed to break up organization of massive demonstrations for next Monday and Thursday, set down as days of mourning for about 86 persons killed in clashes with police earlier this week.

200 INJURED

About 200 other persons were wounded in the clashes when police opened fire on about 20,000 Africans. The Africans had approached the Sharpeville police station outside Johannesburg demanding that they be arrested for defying the law that requires all nonwhites to carry identification passes.

The pass system is used to control the movement of nonwhites outside the town of their residence or employment.

The African National Congress (ANC), which remained aloof from the earlier demonstrations called by the less powerful but more militant Pan-Africanist Congress (Pac), joined Thursday in the movement for a day of mourning next Monday.

URGES PROTEST

Albert Lutuli, president of ANC urged every Negro man, woman and child to stay home Monday to "protest against police killings and against the pass laws."

The stay-home movement has produced a creeping paralysis, particularly at the important coal and steel center of Vereeniging, 30 miles south of Johannesburg, one of the trouble spots last Monday.

Throughout his speech to the 1,500 dignitaries in City Hall Khrushchev hammered at the same theme that ran through his speeches Wednesday — the Soviet Union and France must unite to prevent a rise of militarism in West Germany.

Thus far there has been no official reaction to his German attacks. In Bonn, officials said in private the statements were trivial but German newspapers gave bannerline display to his remarks.

Output Rate Soars To $500 Billion

WASHINGTON (AP)—A startling spurt in production has carried the nation's output in the January-March quarter to the record rate of about 500 billion dollars a year.

Government sources reported Thursday that while the stock market was having nervous relapses and business confidence wavered, the economy has been making the "greatest production gain in 10 years."

NOT ALL STRIKE REBOUND

The estimated value of all goods and services produced—the Gross National Product or GNP — has not finally been measured. But preliminary official studies show the rate will be just above or just below the long-sought half-trillion-dollar mark.

Although much of this 16½-billion-dollar gain from the final quarter of 1959 can be attributed to the rebound from the nationwide steel strike, some administration economists said the general economic trend still justifies

President Eisenhower's January forecast that business will keep on expanding through 1960.

However, he added that the gains after mid-year may be smaller than previously anticipated. Few government economists now believe that output for the full year will exceed 510 billion dollars.

NOT MATCHED SINCE '50

However, the rise since the fourth quarter of last year, when industry still was gripped by the 116-day steel strike and its after-effects, has not been matched since mid-1950.

Then, the outbreak of the Korean War and a swift surge of inflation sent the production rate shooting up almost 19 billion dollars in one quarter. By contrast, the current gains have been made without benefit of sharp price rise to inflate the dollar value of the goods turned out and the services performed.

East, West Agree on 6 Arms Steps

GENEVA (UPI)—French delegate Jules Moch reported Thursday East and West had reached agreement on six principles of disarmament, although subsequent sharp exchanges on both sides made it clear any real accord was not near.

At one point the Soviets denounced President Eisenhower's "open skies" inspection plan as espionage, the view they have taken since he first presented it several years ago.

In another exchange the West rejected as unsatisfactory Russia's offer of controls to prevent cheating on any East-West agreement.

TO TRY IN SECRET

The most optimistic development centered on a Soviet offer to solve the impasse through secret diplomacy.

Soviet delegate Valerian A. Zorin opened the way for the secret diplomacy by setting up a series of working lunches and dinners with the Western delegates. This method proved satisfactory to some extent in the past.

The big deadlock centered on the exact meaning and use of the words "controls" and "inspection." The West insists there must be ironclad guarantees. Zorin replied Thursday there was no point in such discussions unless the West agreed first to do away with a specific number of arms and demobilize a fixed number of men.

CALLED A MOCKERY

Western objection to Zorin's latest proposal, made Wednesday, was enunciated by French delegate Moch. Zorin had proposed that both sides agree to a count of men and arms taken out of service, but not to a count of those remaining.

Moch said such a proposal would make any disarmament plan a mockery.

The chief hope in making headway toward an agreement apparently lay in secret diplomacy.

Plane Found On Mountain With 4 Dead

ELKINS, W. Va. (UPI)—Search parties Thursday found the wreckage of an Air Force C45 transport, missing since Tuesday night, on a rugged, snow-covered mountainside 23 miles southeast of here. All four persons aboard were dead.

The two-engine plane disappeared on a flight from Richmond, Va., to Columbus, Ohio.

The wreckage was spotted Wednesday but deep snowdrifts hampered rescuers in their efforts to reach the plane. Thursday morning, ground crews were landed by helicopter and trudged through 2½ miles of deep snow to reach the site.

The Air Force identified those aboard the plane as Capt. William G. Barbour, Florence, S.C., the pilot; Mrs. Elizabeth D. Tucker, Richmond, Va., a school teacher and a lieutenant colonel in the Civil Air Patrol (CAP); Monroe Hatch, a civilian employee at Shaw Air Force Base, Sumter, S.C., and Clarence Bomer, education director for the CAP in North Carolina.

Let State Enforce Truck Regulations

Among significant legislation signed by Gov. Vandiver this week is a bill which will make it possible for the State Highway Department to enforce more effectively laws affecting weight limits and dimensions of trucks.

The department is authorized under the bill to deputize employees of its truck weighing division to help enforce such laws. They will be permitted to weigh and measure vehicles suspected of being in violation of regulations on any public road, not just at weighing stations.

Reason for the law is obvious enough. It is no secret that some firms operating trucks in violation of weight and size limits have found ways to evade weighing stations. Their trucks are parked alongside highways approaching such stations and remain parked until these have been moved to new locations. The division under the new law can go out and check such vehicles on the spot.

Some trucking firms have figured out ingenious ways of evading these weighing stations, even to the point of corrupting department employees for information as to their location.

Now that the department has such a law, it should be put to good use. Enforcement in the past has been a travesty, to say the least. Even now, a fine of $200 on vehicles whose operators refuse to stop and have them weighed is mild, to say the least.

Well remembered is the fact that a bill which would require truckers operating overweight and extra-long trucks to pay a fee for a permit to operate such vehicles was killed in the last session of the General Assembly. It was brought out in debate on the bill that the state issues 35,000 such permits a year at great expense.

If we are going to have laws regulating size and weight of trucks, let's enforce them. But if such laws can be evaded through a simple ruse of getting a special permit, why bother with regulation at all? At any rate, the state should make every effort to enforce existing laws without favor. Firms which abide by the rules should not be penalized by those which thumb their noses at the law. And Georgia taxpayers are entitled to an honest effort at enforcement of truck regulations.

Khrushchev Still Aims At Breaking Up NATO

It didn't take much time to figure out what Premier Khrushchev's real aims are on his visit to France. Most of his diplomatic efforts—revealed in his first statement in Paris—will be devoted to an attempt at wrecking the Western alliance system.

His special appeal to France is designed to lure her away from NATO into an alliance with the Soviets against Germany, about which he paints all kinds of bogey to frighten the French. The latter, remembering that the Communist regime allied itself with Hitler just before the latter overran France, are not fools.

De Gaulle and the French know full well the score and are reacting to Khrushchev accordingly. And both the French and the Germans know that the real menace to themselves and to freedom of Western Europe lies not in another Franco-German war that would give the Soviet Union control of all of Europe but in a failure of Western unity to meet the Soviet threat.

The truth, and France and Germany know it well, is that neither can stand alone and that neither could survive a divisive alliance with the Soviet Union.

Franklin Pierce Adams Left Legacy of Humor

The old-timer is the one who thinks of "Information Please" when someone says "quiz show."

"Information Please" takes one back to the late 1930s when John Kieran, Clifton Fadiman and a long, lugubrious-looking individual named Franklin Pierce Adams were answering questions with encyclopedic accuracy.

And they supplied the answers for peanuts, not the big pay-off. Franklin P. Adams died this week at 78.

In a long career of wisecrack and wisdom, in poetry and prose, "F. P. A." had lifted millions from the humdrum about them. Along with Will Rogers and others of the humorous ilk, he helped America laugh at itself in times of trouble.

In 1932, "F. P. A." paraphrased Thomas Marshall and told a depressed America, "What this country needs is a good five-cent nickel."

He philosophized in poetry:

"Yet though my lamp burn low and dim,
Though I must slave for livelihood—
Think you that I would change with him?
You bet I would!"

The rich man, that is. That was the name of the poem.

Many a rich man would have swapped his estate for the fun which was evident in "F. P. A."

The author-humorist made prose and poetry pay fairly well at that.

His legacy to the world is humor. And the world is much the richer for it.

The Right To Dissent Is Basic to Freedom

Appearing before the Sibley Commission Wednesday, Supt. Paul West of Fulton County Schools made a statement which should make us all take a good look at ourselves.

Discussing the bitterness of the school controversy, Supt. West declared: "Boards of education are split; families are divided; and even close friends dread to meet one another on the street for fear that the subject of the public schools will be brought up."

Granted that the emotional issue involved is great and that almost every citizen is directly concerned, what has happened to the sense of fair play and the right of everyone to be heard and to express himself intelligently and freely without fear of reprisals, threats and worse? Why should the mere fact of disagreement bring on bitterness and ill will?

What is there about this or any other problem which cannot be resolved through the decent processes of democracy, intelligent discussion and reciprocal respect for opinions?

Yet throughout Georgia and elsewhere many decent citizens are being subjected to abuse, to telephone threats of violence merely because they have dared express an opinion. Schools are emptied by bomb threats and the most salacious hate literature on record is being disseminated by organized groups.

The hatemongers issue threats of boycott and extremists malign all who express an opinion contrary to their own.

Since when did one become a Communist merely because he exercises his right to dissent? Yet such accusations have become standard practice by those who would brook no opposition.

The great questions facing us can be resolved only if we face up to them with mature and intelligent discussion and reason. They can never be solved in an atmosphere which would deny those basic rights of freedom of thought, of speech and expressions of dissent. Conduct of the Sibley commission itself is a fine example of common sense at work.

Caution Deserves Place In Quest for Industry

Georgia communities, well aware of the necessity of seeking new industries, on occasion are tempted to go overboard in making unreasonable concessions in order to obtain their goal.

Some of them would do well to examine a decision made by The Valley Industrial Council at a recent meeting in West Point.

It turned thumbs down on an opportunity for establishment of a manufacturing plant there.

The concern, headquartered in a Western state, had indicated it would employ some 500 persons.

The council investigated the demands made by the company in return for locating in the valley area and found them to be most unrealistic. It seems the firm wanted just about everything in the book in way of special favors.

Furthermore, the Valley Times-News reported that LaGrange previously had refused to accept terms stipulated by the same concern.

Georgia needs to industrialize at an even faster pace than it has in the past few years. But at the same time a word of caution is in order. Some prospective newcomers to the state's industrialization scene could become a burden rather than an asset.

Stable companies with a history of integrity are, for the most part, willing and able to pay their share of the cost of establishing new plants and they strive to become good citizens of the communities in which they locate. These are the kind that Georgia should seek.

Georgian Warns That Internal Problems Shouldn't Blind U.S. to Communist Threat

Norman Park—Why do some Americans appear oblivious to the dangers of communism? I fear that while we are fussing over schools and other problems the rattlesnake is getting in his coil. If he strikes we shall never speak again!

The hold of communism is appalling! One of our great patriotic organizations had to leave New York City on account of Communist interference. A professor in one of our Southern universities remarked to one of his classes, "How do we know we don't like communism? We've never tried it." How do we know we don't like potassium cyanide? We've never tried it.

Drag Strips Defended As Valuable to Youth

Atlanta — People complain about drag strips but that is the first place that many of our young people learn to appreciate advanced engineering techniques. If we hope to compete with Russia in the missile race, I suggest that we encourage young mechanical talent instead of arresting it.

Some of these so-called do-gooders would do well to devote themselves to operating a true public facility such as a drag strip.

Good Salesman Is Product of the Ages

He came striding into the city room the other day on the springs of apparent success, shooting his cuffs and knowing his way, a salesman's salesman... almost. Only later did we stop to think why he failed. Nothing is more artistic than a good salesman at work and no art must know more things.

A good salesman is a thing of beauty and an excellent salesman is purely superb.

This is always true, despite the era. He could be in the horse-drawn buggy or out there on that smile and that shoeshine or now pushing the motivation research bit of business or striped tooth paste.

For the good salesman belongs to the ages. And vice versa.

And this one was a pro's old pro.

Which made me wonder, later, why it was he missed.

A newspaper office is not the hotbed of cynics some would have you believe but on the other hand patsies do not grow wild.

This salesman strode in, though, right through the atmosphere of editors on deadline—this is an air to which mustard gas is by comparison usually beneficial.

"John, howza boy?" he said to me when he got to my desk. He has just been talking to so-and-so, he said, mentioning a co-worker of mine placed in heights of superiority. "How is everything going?"

I said it was going pretty good; win some, lose some. I shook whole article was not an appeal for human rights but an article written telling the white people what the Negro wants us to give him. Since the white people pay most of the taxes, then we have the right to say where our money goes. Why don't the Negroes ask us to help them help themselves instead of give me this, give me that, give, give, give which will soon turn into take, take, take.

Georgian Reproves 'Rights Ad' Criticism

Southampton, Mass. — I was truly disappointed in Gov. Vandiver's attitude as expressed in his reply to "An Appeal for Human Rights." It doesn't matter so much that he doesn't think it could have been written by Georgia college students. The point is what does this imply about Georgia's educational level? What bothers me is his attitude that the white people should be congratulated, in a way, for what they've "done for" their Negro friends and that there is no room for criticism because of that precious mite. He makes it sound as if the Negro should be so grateful to the whites that he's not worse off than he is. Grateful for what? For the parceling out of his natural rights? The governor and all of us should know more humility than that.

It's not strange at all that the statement comes from where it does. These students are still members of their race, though they may have more advantages than most. Why shouldn't they be the ones to speak up? As long as inequality and injustice exist anywhere toward Negroes or whites those who can talk sensibly about it should do so. And inequality and injustice toward the Negro exist in Atlanta. Don't include me among Georgians who reject this implication. I accept it and I'm ashamed of it—and I've lived in Atlanta all my life.

Scout Found A Good Coach

Buyers of men's and women's wear must go every so often to the New York market. The furniture folks head for High Point. So do I, from time to time, venture out to pick up what's new in humor. Last weekend the tour was westward, to Dallas and the plains to the northwest. From "deep in the heart of" comes the tale of the college prexy who went out on his own to scout for likely basketball talent.

"Any luck?" asked the coach eagerly, when the head man came back to the campus.

"You know," said the president, "I ran on to a little high school in West Texas which hasn't lost a ball game in four years."

"Go on, go on!" urged the coach. "You did sign the best among their boys, didn't you?"

"No, I didn't," the president replied. "The boys are good athletes, but on the small side, not the right stature for our league. But I tell you what I did do. I signed their coach as a replacement for you."

HALFTIME: I will not risk changing the story. I'm impartial. I'll tell it just as I heard it. You can adapt it to Georgia and your allegiance.

The man said, "A classified in the Fort Worth Star-Telegram read: WANTED: Texas Christian University graduate or the equivalent."

"A lad from Austin answered: Could you use two SMU men or one University of Texas man half time?"

Which reminds me, Louis Sohn, a Georgia man, noting the scholastic difficulties among athletes at Tech is quoted as saying, "They're already integrating at Tech. They're integrating the football players and the engineers and the results are disastrous."

OF ALL THINGS: Pawnbroker explaining why the trade got rid of the "Three Balls" symbol: "People got wise. They found out those three metal balls out in front meant the odds were two-to-one against them." ... Pessimistic Texan, "That's not the south wind, that's just the north wind going home."

Honesty Code Is Exercise in Futility

WASHINGTON—All kinds of bad behavior, ranging from television scandals to the intermittent international nastiness of Khrushchev, have produced hopeful proposals for improving what are rather grandly called public ethics. The reformers' purpose is to guarantee men's goodness by new "codes" or by having them sign papers announcing their honesty and decency.

This correspondent has news for the promoters of this kind of ethics. It is news based upon long experience in watching public affairs. Their reforms will come to worse than nothing. The only result will be to increase hypocrisy. For the notion that honesty in government—or in television or college exams or selling real estate—can be assured by new formulas is as silly as it is well intentioned.

If a public man is honest he is honest. He will be no more honest if he adopts somebody else's hand made "code" or even if he consents to wear on his lapel a large celluloid button reading: "I am an honest man—absolutely." There are, after all, certain codes to live by that are far older and authoritative than some senator's private creation. One is called the Ten Commandments.

And if a public man is dishonest it is simply because he is a crook at heart. It is not because he has neglected his lessons in ethics from reformist senators or club ladies. All short cuts to making public men honest are absolutely useless.

Moreover, the reformist craze invariably gets out of hand. The new chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, Frederick Ford, already has had to issue cautions. "Cleaning up" anything that really is wrong with his supervisory agency over TV is fine. But to put upon the commissioners such restrictions as to shut them off from all real contact with the men of the industry would be absurd.

For, as Ford has pointed out to Congress, unless a regulator can mix with those he is supposed to regulate he simply can't have a clue as to what they are up to at any given time.

And as to international ethics, the British—whose sense of humor is usually more active—have now solemnly decided to approach Khrushchev with a new "code." They will ask him to adopt an "agreed pattern for international behavior."

The complaint is that Mr. K now and then departs from the spirit of international good will by saying bad things about the West. But would it mean anything at all if he actually took some pledge? If he really wants an East-West settlement he will guard his tongue, on the whole.

Despondent Man Found Happiness

A fellow clergyman tells of being awakened late one night by the ringing of the telephone. When at last he aroused himself enough to answer he heard a voice saying, "Preacher, I am going to take my own life." The clergyman said, "What's your hurry? Wait until morning and we will talk over this matter." So the preacher and the stranger set the hour when they would get together the following day.

The man who was phoning was a businessman who had achieved considerable success in his particular work. Success had brought him a fortune and a certain satisfaction in his accomplishments. But it had not brought him happiness nor had it given him a deeper understanding of the meaning of life. At last he came to the decision that life was a pretty insipid affair.

The preacher and the business tycoon got together. They turned to the Word of God and they knelt in prayer. God's love flooded into the man's heart and God's purposes renewed the man's desire to live. At last he said, "Surely there is something I can do to express my gratitude to you."

"Yes, there is," the preacher replied. "You are a man of great wealth and so you are able to use what you have for others."

Then the preacher told of a particular need within the church wherein a considerable outlay of money would provide health and happiness for many of God's less fortunate children. The businessman took heart, wrote out a check of generous proportions, and invested his time and love in the people for whom the money was dedicated.

Time passed and the man found new meanings and new purposes in his life. His business prospered. All went well with him. But occasionally his phone would ring and he would hear the voice of his preacher-friend pleading with him for money for Christ's work. After this had continued for some years the businessman finally said, "Long ago you showed me how I might find the meaning of life by investing what I have in others. But now I don't need your remedy. I'm all right and I don't think you should continue to ask me to write checks."

"Oh, I'm not thinking particularly of those persons who are helped by your money," the preacher replied. "I'm worried about you. Just as soon as you stop helping others, you are going to become miserable once more and you are going to say that life is not worth living."

To this day the businessman continues to give a share of his wealth through the church for the relief of suffering. What he has given totals a considerable amount. But the man long since stopped counting the cost that life has placed on his stewardship and he long ago stopped wondering if life is worthwhile. He is, to my way of thinking, an incarnation of Christ's principle for living that when we cast our bread upon the waters we are ourselves most blessed.

Labor Vote Leans Toward Kennedy

WASHINGTON—Organized labor is playing a waiting game in the presidential election but the trend among the leaders now seems to be running pro-Kennedy and anti-Nixon. George Meany, president of the AFL-CIO, said that he would call a meeting of his top executives immediately after the nominating conventions to decide his organization's policy.

Meanwhile, he added, there would be no endorsements of candidates except in one-party states where the primary elections are decisive.

For the time being, the AFL-CIO is concentrating on getting out the vote. After the last two elections, Meany ordered a check on the percentage of labor union members voting. Surveys in New Jersey and Illinois showed that the percentage of union members voting was less than the national average of non-union voters. A major effort is afoot to reverse this situation.

Here are the present trends among union leaders according to well-informed union officials here:

1. Sen. Humphrey of Minnesota is the sentimental favorite of most union leaders but Sen. Kennedy of Massachusetts will have their support if he beats Humphrey in the Wisconsin primary next month.

2. Though some union officials here say they have found Nixon open and sympathetic to their cause—and even add that they would prefer him to President Eisenhower—they insist that the majority of labor union leaders not only distrust the vice president but dislike him personally.

3. The main difference in the 1960 presidential election as compared with 1952 and 1956, they say, will not be the "labor vote" so much as the "labor wives' vote." "Most of the working men voted for Stevenson," their union official said, "but their wives voted for Eisenhower. That may be the main difference this year: I doubt that they'll vote against their husbands for Nixon."

The gap between the White House and the national labor union leaders in Washington is even wider now than in the past. Meany wrote to President Eisenhower last November suggesting a conference of management and labor union leaders. The President approved the suggestion. But since then nothing has happened and though Secretary of Labor Mitchell is still talking about the conference the union leaders have the impression that it is now being shelved because of opposition by the National Association of Manufacturers.

Even Vice President Nixon's efforts to help settle the steel strike on terms acceptable to labor have apparently not endeared him to the union members. When the strike was over, David McDonald, president of the Steelworkers Union, went to Buffalo to address a labor union meeting. In the course of what turned out to be a labor "victory celebration," McDonald gave some credit for the settlement to Nixon, who was loudly booed despite McDonald's praise.

Jury Frees Bishop in Robbery

Lawyer Jailed In Contempt

By RICHARD ASHWORTH

Joe Lee Bishop was acquitted Thursday by a Fulton Superior Court jury of charges that he masterminded the Nov. 2, 1959, robbery of a southwest Atlanta rental office.

Immediately afterwards, Judge E. E. Andrews cited Joe Salem, one of Bishop's defense lawyers, for contempt and ordered him sent to Fulton Tower for 10 days.

The judge cited Salem's conduct during the trial, and listed two questions Salem put to prospective jurors which the judge said were improper. One of the questions, the judge said, implied he would not be impartial.

DENIES BOND BID

Judge Andrews denied a request for an appeal bond for Salem "until something is filed." Later, Walter Fincher, Bishop's other attorney, presented the judge with a written request for bond. That was also denied.

Fincher said Judge Andrews told him he would have to present a bill of exceptions (appeal) before he would set an appeal bond.

The contempt citation came after two and one-half days of trial in which the defense sought to show that three co-defendants who testified against Bishop had attempted to plead guilty and that Judge Andrews would not accept their pleas until Bishop was tried.

QUESTIONS CITED

The contempt order cited two questions which Salem asked about 15 prospective jurors.

In one of the questions, Salem asked jurors if they believed in the principle of law that a trial judge "should be impartial as between the state and the accused."

In the second question, the defense asked jurors if they felt the "refusal" of the trial judge to accept the guilty pleas of the co-defendants would have any bearing on the case.

Judge Andrews vociferously denounced any implication that he was not impartial. And he denied that he had ever refused to accept the guilty plea of any defendant.

The judge charged Salem "knew there was no foundation for any such question as" the second. He charged Salem knew two of the defendants had entered pleas, yet "insinuated" the court had refused to accept them.

AMENDS ORDER

The judge called that "incomprehensible, disreputable conduct... low, unethical conduct."

He said a "lot of lawyers have got a lot of smart ideas that it's smart to bait a judge, do everything they can to irritate him. It's a sad day when they come to that."

Judge Andrews first told Salem he was going to fine him $200 or let him serve 10 days.

Salem argued that he had no knowledge that pleas had been entered. "Far be it from me to knowingly mislead the court or to do anything to infer that the court is not impartial," Salem said.

That attitude, said the judge, made it worse. "I think I'll amend it (the contempt order) and strike the $200 and give him a straight jail sentence."

BISHOP TO PRISON

The state had based most of its case against Bishop on the testimony of Shelton Cecil Harper, James Willard McManus and Roy V. Sears, the co-defendants.

They testified they robbed the LaVilla Apartments, Inc., at 381 Amal Dr., S.W., of $1,738.91, while Bishop waited outside in the getaway car.

The defense built its case on the fact that the co-defendants had not yet been tried and on the issue about their pleas.

Bishop, however, didn't go free. He'll be returned to Reidsville to serve a sentence on which his probation was revoked when he was arrested in the robbery case.

The revocation was based on his being found in a car where guns were found, and for associating with person with criminal records.

It's Marietta to Memphis For W.C. Handy's Statue

By JAMES SHEPPARD

The rays of that evening sun he hated to see go down sifted through the skylight of the McNeel Marble Co. plant in Marietta Thursday and caught on an heroic bronze statue of W. C. Handy.

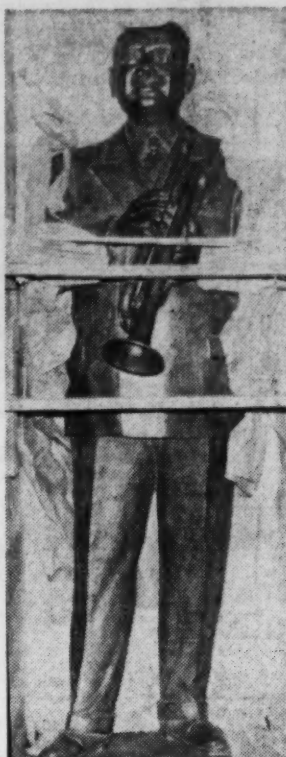

The eight and one-half-foot likeness of the musician-composer and his golden trumpet was encased, coffin-like in a wooden box. But for a fleeting moment—as a stonemason began whistling a sweet, sad note or two of Handy's "St. Louis Blues"—the statue was alive, seemingly.

Then reality broke in with all its matter-of-factness:

"It won't be uncrated," said Raymond E. Reece, "until we get it to Memphis. A truck will haul it there Monday."

Artists executed the design in Florence, Italy. The statue will stand on a red-marble memorial at Memphis in a park which bears the name of the man who shaped the rhythm of the Negro race into America's syncopated tempo of the blues.

Reece is chief designer for

STATUE FOR MEMPHIS

the memorial and the McNeel Marble Co. is contractor.

It was in Memphis that Handy, the "Father of the Blues," wrote his first successful song, "The Memphis Blues," composed as a campaign piece for Edward Hall (Boss) Crump, who in 1905 was running for mayor of the town.

The statue will be unveiled when the Memphis memorial is dedicated during the last week in April.

William Christopher Handy, the son of one-time Alabama slaves, died blind and infirm at the age of 84 in New York City.

Still Feels Bruised, Weak After Fall, Rep. Blitch Says

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Iris Blitch of Homerville, Ga., reported Thursday she still feels "bruised and weak" after a fall Sunday in her Arlington, Va., home.

Mrs. Blitch said she wasn't able to get to the House Thursday to cast her vote against final passage of the civil rights bill. She had a live pair on the vote.

The bidding:

 Pass 1♥ Pass 2♣
 Pass 2NT. Pass 6NT.

Opening lead: Eight of ♣.
 West exercised fine discretion in his choice of an opening lead today. He gave away nothing but in the nature of things his action provided declarer with a valuable clue.

The bidding was brief but eminently sound and had the merit of giving the opposition a minimum amount of information on which to base their defense. South opened with one heart and North, who was perhaps an eyelash short of the requirements for an immediate jump shift response, temporized with a bid of two clubs. South suppressed his diamond suit in favor of the more descriptive rebid of two no trump which shows at least 15 points. By a simple bit of mathematical calculation, North determined that the partnership had a minimum of 33 high card points (18 plus the 15 designated by partner's rebid). The assets were bolstered by possession of a good five card suit, so he proceeded forth-with to six not trump.

West was reluctant to lead away from either one of his four card suits against the no trump slam for fear that he might present declarer with a 12th trick. He therefore chose the neutral opening of the eight of clubs through dummy's suit. As declarer won the trick with the king, he observed that clubs were not apt to break and that he could take only 11 tricks even with a successful spade finesse.

The 12th trick might be obtained either by dropping the diamond jack, an eventuality which would take care of itself, or by means of a squeeze and end play on West if he had the king of spades plus diamond protection. Declarer accordingly returned to his hand with a heart and took the spade finesse by leading low and putting in the jack. When the jack held, South cashed the high club and ran the hearts and diamonds, reducing all hands to three cards. Declarer now exited with the ten of diamonds and West was faced with the unpleasant task of leading away from his king of spades. This, of course, presented South with the last two tricks.

President Plans His Usual Vacation For Golf at Augusta Next Month

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Eisenhower may go to Augusta, Ga., next month for his usual spring golfing vacation, the White House indicated Thursday.

White House press secretary

James C. Hagerly told newsmen he had nothing to announce on the subject. But he reminded them that Eisenhower usually likes to visit Georgia in April.

Hagerly said he had no immediate information on whether the President would be here to throw out the first ball in the opening game of the American League baseball season April 18 between the Washington Senators and the Boston Red Sox.

Read Bible, Lead Parent
To Salvation

QUESTION: My father is not a Christian, and when he sees me reading the Bible he scolds me and tells me I ought to be doing my school work. What should I do about this?—W. T.

ANSWER: I think that perhaps your reading of the Bible is a rebuke to your father, and it makes him ill at ease to see his son doing the thing he ought to be doing. However, the Bible says: "A soft answer turneth away wrath," and I would treat him with respect.

He could be testing you out to see if you are going to waver in your faith. It might be best to do your reading of God's Word in your room, or at least assure your parent that you have finished your homework before you read the Bible. I know a lot of teen-agers who have won their parents to Christ, and I feel that your father is not far from the Kingdom of God. The very fact that he makes your Bible reading an issue shows that it is getting "under his skin." Pray for him and show him proper respect, and I would not be surprised if he did not soon follow your example and give his heart to Christ.

Good Health

Infection
Will Foul
The Breath

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.
Dear Dr. Molner: I shall appreciate any information as to how to prevent or improve the bad breath attributed to trench mouth.—H. R.

Trench mouth, or Vincent's Disease, is one common cause of foul breath.

There are other causes: Diseased tonsils, sometimes diseases affecting the nose, certain conditions of the throat or bronchial passages, such as bronchiectasis, which permits formation of pockets of foul-smelling material.

So a general treatment for "bad breath" does not exist; there are, however, treatments for individual types, depending on the cause of each.

Trench mouth (or any of several other names sometimes applied to it) is an inflammation of the gums. It can start without warning and creates a characteristic and unpleasant odor.

At least four types of bacteria are known to be associated with this condition.

Torn or irritated gums seem to invite the disease, and a denture which does not fit properly or perhaps a filling with a sharp or rough edge, or a broken tooth is the sort of thing one is apt to find when this disease starts. It is believed that anything which lowers a person's resistance must also be a contributing cause.

What to do to relieve the odor? Get rid of the infection. Great care should be taken in regular mouth and tooth hygiene: Gentle brushing, rinsing and use of dental floss. I say "gentle" because the gums may bleed very easily. Anyway, all debris should be removed regularly, and sometimes a hydrogen peroxide rinse (1½ per cent solution) is advised.

That's the patient's part of the job. Your dentist, on the other hand, must start you off by filling cavities, getting rid of "pockets" in the gums, removing calculus or other hard deposits which irritate the gum tissues.

Since the disease has a strong tendency to spread to other parts of the mouth (lips, inside of the cheeks, tongue, etc.) it should be treated at once.

Treated quickly, it usually yields quickly, sometimes as soon as a couple of weeks. Allowed to spread to other parts of the mouth, it becomes more stubborn.

Dr. Molner is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Israel Orders Irish Wares

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP)—Israel will buy goods worth five million dollars from Ireland during the next 12 months. Dr. Samuel Glat, economic counselor at the Israeli Embassy in London, said in Dublin. Most of the purchases will be meat, wool and agricultural implements. Glat said Israel hopes Ireland will reciprocate and that the two nations' trade will increase.

Gen. Lee Looked Through These

LEXINGTON, Va. (AP)—The binoculars used by Gen. Robert E. Lee throughout the Civil War have been presented to Washington and Lee University by Mrs. George Bolling Lee of San Francisco, widow of Lee's grandson. Apparently the binoculars did not fit into the leather case as well as Gen. Lee would have liked. In the bottom a blank Confederate Army printed form, entitled "Enlisted Men on Extra or Day Duty," was wadded up to provide a snug fit.

Gen. Lee was president of old Washington College from 1863 until his death in 1870, and the college was renamed Washington and Lee in his honor.

4 Penalized in Quantity Liquor Sales

Revenue Commissioner Dixon Oxford indefinitely suspended the license of one retailer and put three others on 12 months probation Thursday for selling liquor in wholesale quantities.

Indefinitely suspended was the license held by Gene Cowan, Berrien County, who operated a place north of Alapaha.

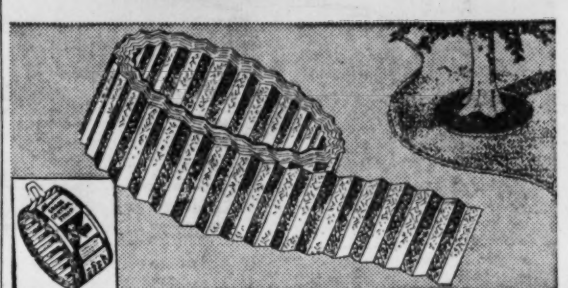

H. P. Stanberry, Albany, operator of the Modern Package Store, paid a $250 fine, avoiding a 15-day suspension of his license.

Thomas Jefferson New, Albany, operator of Four Points Package Store, was fined $250 and his license was suspended 15 days.

James R. Toole, Albany, operator of El Rancho Package Store, was fined $100.

Cave Killings Of 3 Women Baffle Police

STARVED ROCK STATE PARK, Ill. (UPI)—State police admitted Thursday they were practically at a dead end in their search for the Starved Rock sex maniac who trapped and bludgeoned three women to death.

For the first time since the slain women's bodies were discovered March 16, there was no state policeman on guard at the cave where the killer had lined up the bodies of Mrs. Frances Murphy, 47, Mrs. Lillian Oetting, 50, and Mrs. Mabel Lindquist, 50.

After 5 Months in Red 'Paradise,' He Hints He'd Like to Go Home

ZELIENOPLE, Pa. (AP)—Last October a 36-year-old American plastics specialist handed a signed statement to Consul General Snyder in Moscow renouncing his U.S. citizenship.

Robert Webster said he had been granted Soviet citizenship and was staying in the Soviet Union for ideological reasons, leaving behind his wife and two children.

Webster defected to the Russians after working last summer at the American exhibition in Moscow for the Rand Development Corp., a Cleveland plastics firm.

Now there are indications Webster has had a change of heart and wants to return home.

Two postcards to his children, both ending with, "I hope to see you soon," is Martha Webster's only indication that her husband is ready to come home.

The cards were received by 7-year-old Michael and 6-year-old Anne. They were postmarked March 4th. Mrs. Webster said Thursday she has received absolutely no mail from her husband.

"I just don't know. It's been a year since Bob went to Russia. I haven't had any direct contact with him. I wish somebody would tell me something," she said.

Webster's father, Charles, refuses to confirm or deny he has received any letters from his son indicating he wants to return.

"I don't know who starts all these stories. Our mail is private and not for the newspapers," said the elder Webster. His wife suffered a nervous breakdown after their son defected.

The State Department said it has not heard from Webster nor has he contacted the U.S. Embassy in Moscow. If Webster has had a change of heart, the State Department has indicated he probably will have to wait a long time.

Smoking By Doctors Down 25 Pct.

TRENTON, N.J. (UPI)—One out of every four U.S. doctors who smoked five years ago has quit because of the reported link between smoking and lung cancer, an American Cancer Society official reported Thursday.

Dr. Daniel Horn, speaking to a conference of New Jersey health officials, said adult smokers in the United States are dying of lung cancer at the rate of almost 100 a day.

He said 30 million smokers have switched to filter cigarettes in the past five years.

Florida Oldsters Double Number

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The number of people in Florida 65 years old and older nearly doubled from 1950 to 1958, the Census Bureau reported Thursday. Florida's 65-plus population jumped 93 per cent, from 225,000 to 453,000. Vermont, however, was first among the states in proportion of older people to total population. It had 11.6 per cent in 1958 compared to Florida's 10.2 per cent.

Ex-President Truman

Truman To NAACP: 'I Said It'

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (AP)—Former President Harry S. Truman Thursday informed two officials of the Detroit branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People that he was correctly quoted on a statement he made about Southern lunch counter sitdowns.

At Louisville, the former President was quoted as saying: "If anyone came into my store and tried to stop business, I'd throw him out. The Negro should behave himself and show he's a good citizen. Common sense and good will can solve this whole thing."

Edward M. Turner, president of the Detroit NAACP branch, and Arthur L. Johnson, executive secretary, sent Truman a telegram saying they had read his statement, and added that if he had been quoted accurately, it was "shocking and deeply disappointing."

Truman's wire said: "I would do just what I said I would. NAACP is an organization which has been working for good will and common sense in this situation with which we are faced. When they do things that cause people, who have been friendly to them as I have been, to feel that they are doing the wrong thing, they are losing friends instead of making them. If I were in Detroit I would say the same thing to you personally for all the newspapers and television in the country. I can't come to Detroit because of illness in the family, but if I were there I would tell you exactly what I am saying now. This is not personal nor confidential."

His reference to the trip to Detroit concerns the Midwest Democratic conference in Detroit which he was scheduled to attend. His brother-in-law, George Wallace, underwent surgery Tuesday.

2 Tax Dodges By Powell Described

NEW YORK (AP)—The government sought to show Thursday that Rep. Adam Clayton Powell and his wife on a 1951 European tour charged off the cost of a governess for their child as a business expense.

The woman, Pearl Swangin, was listed in Powell's income tax returns as a beautician for his wife, pianist Hazel Scott, during a concert tour of Europe. As such, her expenses and salary were deductible.

Powell, Negro congressman from Harlem, is on trial in federal District Court, charged with cheating the government of $3,063 in income taxes in 1951 and 1952.

Another witness, Joseph Ford, former Democratic leader of a Harlem district, testified he received a $1,000 check from Powell in 1950 to help defray expenses of political campaign workers.

The check was listed as a deductible expense on Powell's 1951 tax return. Such political expenses are not deductible, the government said.

Ohio Bomb Scare

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI)—Telephoned bomb scares Thursday sent state highway patrolmen to the office of Gov. DiSalle and the governor's mansion but they found no bombs.

Prison Land To Die by Pocket Veto

Vandiver Signs 7 Other Bills

Gov. Vandiver has decided to kill by pocket veto a legislative resolution which would authorize use of land in Putnam County as the site for a new state prison.

The State Department of Corrections proposed the resolution, which would have acquired 14,000 acres of land owned by the State Board of Regents for use in building a new prison.

The resolution earlier had been ruled invalid by Atty. Gen. Eugene Cook.

Corrections Director Jack Forrester was unavailable for comment Thursday as to whether he has other sites in mind for a new prison. The department has plans for a structure to hold about 1,200 prisoners.

Meanwhile, Vandiver, still recuperating in Piedmont Hospital from a mild heart condition, signed seven bills, vetoed 13 and indicated a pocket veto for another measure which would provide a $2,400 minimum salary for the juvenile court judge in Camden County.

Measures approved would prevent licensing of any new private banks in the state; increase points on examinations for state jobs given veterans by the State Examining Board; permit construction of a shopping center over railroad tracks in downtown Atlanta, and convert two tracts of land from Gracewood School for Mental Defectives to the City of Augusta.

Bills vetoed included one amending Valdosta's city charter to expand the city limits; a bill that would have prevented collection agencies from telephoning debtors about their bills and a measure to allow the State Department of Commerce to issue sample auto license plates.

Vandiver also vetoed a bill that would require motor vehicle license plates to be sold between Oct. 1 and Jan. 1.

CLOCKED AT 65

Police Trap Woman in Wild Chase

After a race halfway across the city, six Atlanta patrol cars early Thursday morning halted a woman driver who had a cold disdain for the best efforts of the law.

Listed as Mrs. Marie Rose Theresa Generous, 32, of Mt. Clemens, Mich., she was placed in city jail under an assortment of traffic charges with bonds totaling $500. A hearing is set for April 5 in traffic court.

Mrs. Generous was finally halted on Murphy avenue, near Glenn street, SW. Patrolman W. H. Byrd said one patrol car maneuvered in front of her vehicle and applied brakes, another nudged her car from behind and a third ran alongside, pinning her car against a railroad embankment.

TRY TRAIN BLOCK?

"I was thinking of trying to get a freight train to block the street down below and see if that would stop her," Byrd said.

Removed from her car by two policemen, Mrs. Generous said: "One lousy light—all cops are just alike."

The strange procession started, Byrd said, when he saw Mrs. Generous run a red light at Spring and Marietta streets, NW, during the early morning. Then, he added, she ran four others in rapid succession, going south on Spring and Whitehall and ignoring all demands to stop, the officer said.

FINALLY A TRAP

One police car blocked the street at Whitehall and McDaniel streets, SW, but hastily beat a retreat when others warned by radio that the driver would not stop.

"I tried red lights, blowing the horn and even attempting to force her into the curb," Byrd said. "She just kept driving until we finally got her worked into a trap."

A nine-year-old son of Mrs. Generous, who was asleep on the back seat, was taken into protective custody until charges against his mother can be disposed of, officers said. The youth said they were en route to Miami to visit relatives.

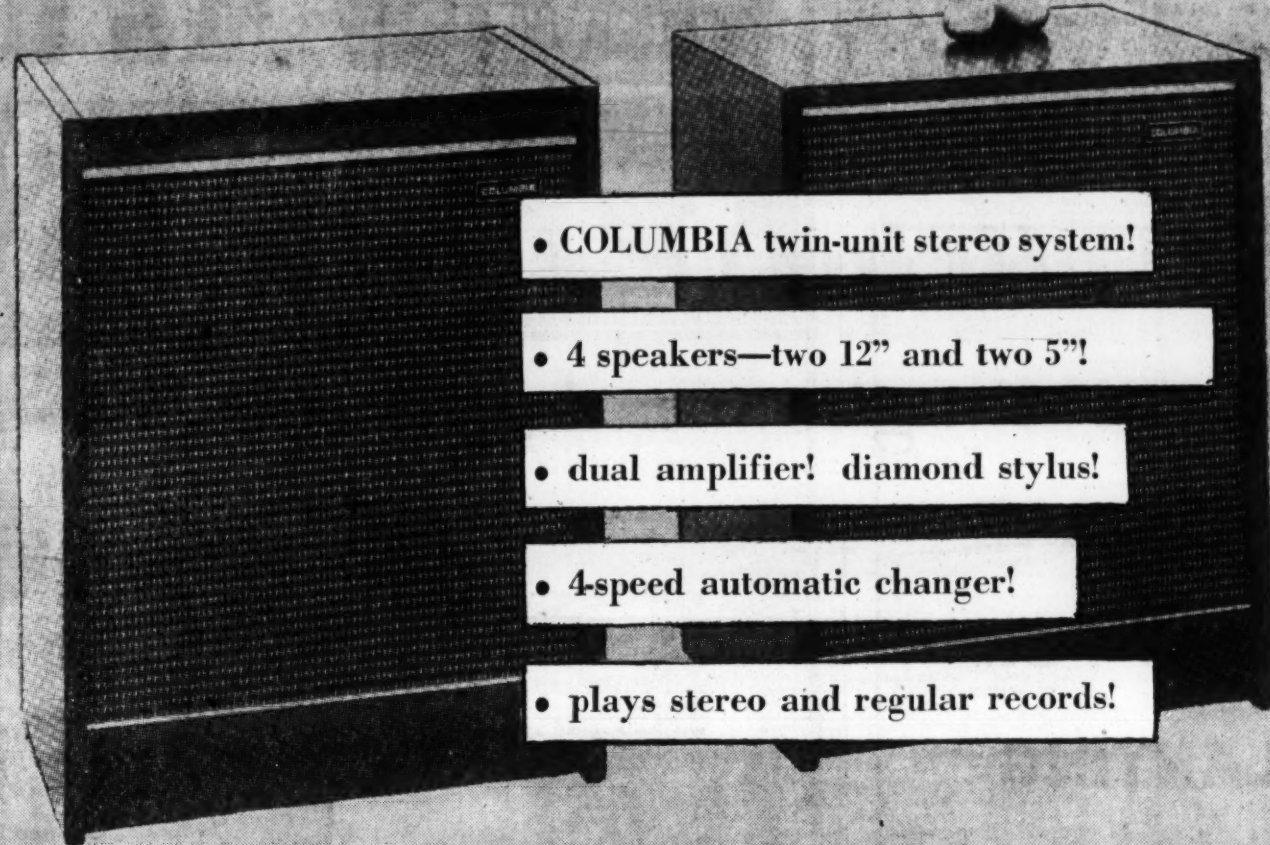

Byrd said charges against Mrs. Generous included running five red lights, speeding 65 in a 30-mile zone, driving on the wrong side of the street and failure to obey an officer's signal.

Atlantan, Girl Held In Abortion Death

An Atlanta X-ray technician and a male companion Thursday were arrested on warrants charging manslaughter following the death of a teen-age girl, DeKalb County police said.

DeKalb Detectives B. F. Corley and D. H. Clotfelter identified the two as Dolores Ruth Fletcher, 23, a hospital technician, and Paul H. Robinson, 40, who said he was a former chiropractor and naturopath. They were in DeKalb County jail Thursday night.

Detectives said they were contemplating several other arrests. They said they were told the girl was admitted to a hospital after an abortion. Death resulted from a blood condition caused by an infection, they said they were told.

Corley and Clotfelter said they entered into the investigation Tuesday and the girl died Wednesday.

Miss Fletcher and Robinson were arrested Wednesday night by DeKalb officers and Atlanta Detectives A. E. McKinnon and J. E. Whitfield. Atlanta officers said they placed a hold order against the two on charges of possessing obscene pictures and literature.

Officers said the two occupied separate apartments in the same building on Queen street, S.W.

Officers said they seized a quantity of obscene pictures and obscene written material. They reported finding cameras, a dark room and medical instruments.

Following the arrests, Miss Fletcher gave a written statement admitting that she and Robinson performed the abortion. DeKalb officers said. They said Robinson at first refused to make a statement and later gave an oral verification of Miss Fletcher's statement.

Miss Fletcher was quoted that she was present when Robinson gave the first treatment, on a

They Found the Spitz-Looking Dog That Bit or Scratched Mindi Sue

A short, intensive dog hunt in northwest Atlanta ended Thursday when the little dog which bit or scratched little Mindi Sue Singer was found.

The dog will be kept under observation to see if it is rabid. Mindi Sue was bitten or scratched on the face by the small "Spitz-looking" dog at her home Wednesday, and doctors had said if the dog could not be found, 2-year-old Mindi Sue would have to take the painful rabies shots.

The dog was found right across the street from where Mindi Sue lives. It had "taken up" with a child who lives there.

Mindi Sue, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Singer of 3622 Tuxedo Rd., N.W., was being carried by a maid from the car to the house. The maid put the little girl down so she could open the door.

The dog ran up suddenly—"right out of nowhere"—and jumped up on the little girl. Nobody knows whether the dog's teeth or claws scratched Mindi Sue's face. It ran off after it scratched Mindi Sue.

Monday night and that she returned alone the following Wednesday to administer further treatment.

Later, the statement was quoted, she was notified that the girl had developed a fever. Detectives said she told them she suggested that a physician be called, thinking that the girl had contracted influenza.

After the physician arrived, detectives said, the girl was placed in a hospital.

Fire Put Out At News Plant

An overheated vent pipe in the engraving department of Atlanta Newspapers, Inc., 10 Forsyth St., N.W., on the third floor of the eight-story building brought downtown fire fighting equipment to the scene early Friday. Firemen quickly extinguished the minor blaze in the vent.

Sitdowns Had 4 Values, Atlanta U. Dean Asserts

The sitdown demonstrations here were valuable from four standpoints, the dean of the school of social work at Atlanta University told students at a "Town Meeting" at the university Thursday night.

Dean Whitney Young Jr. told about 300 students the four values were:

(1) They dramatized injustice. (2) They fought apathy. (3) They released hostility. (4) They will secure action.

N.Y. Grants Raises

NEW YORK (AP)—The city announced Thursday it plans to grant pay increases to 180,000 city workers effective July 1. The increase will amount to 3½ per cent of salaries or benefits. Total annual cost was put at 26 million dollars.

Young was one of three speakers on a panel discussion of "Techniques of Student Protest."

He said there are six methods of protest: (1) expression of displeasure; (2) escape; (3) writing (play or book, etc.); (4) conference and persuasion; (5) pressure (sitdowns, boycotts, voting); and (6) court tests.

The Rev. Dr. William Holmes Borders, pastor of the Wheat Street Baptist Church, told the audience of about 300 there are five "techniques to freedom." He said these are force, legality, compromise, education and spiritual non-violence.

Borders told the students he is proud of what they did, but told them it was not necessary to do it again. He suggested they wait until the courts decide the cases that grew out of the March 15 sitdowns here.

The third speaker on the panel was Miss Genevieve Teague, a student at Spelman College who was arrested in the sitdowns. She said students had accepted it as their personal responsibility to protest the "misinterpretation of written rights that had resulted in racial chaos."

Union City Mayor Asks Help of Court

Union City Mayor W. H. Y. Thornton is seeking a court order to prevent three city councilmen from "continuously interfering" with his performance of his duties as mayor.

A hearing is scheduled at 1:30 p.m. Monday before Judge Luther Alverson in Fulton Superior Court to determine whether a temporary restraining order should be issued against the councilmen.

Thornton contends that Councilmen J. N. Hose, W. E. Donaldson and Shannon Davis have engaged in actions which are endangering the health and the welfare of citizens of Union City.

FUNDS TIED UP

The councilmen were embroiled with Thornton recently when they hired James Bryant as police chief after firing P. H. (Doc) Houston, who had been backed by Thornton.

Judge George P. Whitman Jr. ordered Houston to give up his badge, the order growing out of suits by Bryant and the councilmen backing him.

Among the things Thornton claims in his request for a restraining order is that the three councilmen voted Feb. 15, 1960, to notify the bank where the town's funds are deposited that the mayor's signature is no longer required on city checks.

He claims the bank has now refused to honor any disbursement of funds and that among the unpaid bills resulting from this action is one of $600 to the City of Atlanta for water furnished to Union City.

SAYS WATER PERILED

The mayor claims that if Atlanta is not paid by Friday the town's water may be withheld by Atlanta and Union City will be deprived of drinking water, water for sewage and water for fire protection.

That Councilman Hose confiscated the truck used by the city for sanitary disposal and told sanitary department employees they are fired.

That Councilman Hose also confiscated the truck used for water department maintenance, leaving Union City without water maintenance facilities.

That Hose and Davis threatened

Special Policeman Donald Taylor, who was appointed by the mayor, with prosecution if he put on a police uniform or attempted to perform any police duties.

A preliminary hearing on Thornton's request for a restraining order was held Thursday. Judge Alverson, who is serving as presiding judge this term, declined to issue an order at this time until he has time to go into the matter more fully.

VOICE REGAINED
Col. Fitzgerald

His Larynx Removed by Surgery, Colonel Fights Back to a Full Life

By FRANK WELLS

Lt. Col. William R. Fitzgerald, USAF, talks like a man just recovering from a severe case of laryngitis.

"But I'll never again have a case of laryngitis," Col. Fitzgerald said clearly. "You see, I don't even have a larynx."

Col. Fitzgerald was operated on for cancer of the larynx in January, 1942. It seemed his career in the Air Force was at an end. What good would be an officer who couldn't even voice an order?

But Col. Fitzgerald was back on active duty by November of the same year.

The larynx is what is commonly known as the Adam's apple, or the voice box. It is the seat of two resonant cords over which the wind from the lungs flows, giving sound to the voice.

Col. Fitzgerald talks without use of any vocal cords because he doesn't have any. He breathes through a surgical hole at the base of his throat. The hole is covered by a piece of surgical gauze stretched over a wire frame—"My air conditioner," the colonel explained.

But the voice? "Well, there may be some very delicate way to put it, but the best explanation is that it is a controlled belch," the colonel said. "The air doesn't come directly from the stomach, but from the esophagus. There is normally enough air trapped in the esophagus to say about seven syllables."

He demonstrated the vowel sounds. "Now the consonants are formed by the way you hold your teeth, tongue, cheeks and such combinations—the same for me as for you," the colonel said. His voice sounded like a basso who is relaxing.

The colonel's brown eyes twinkled. "All of us laryngectomies are Cockneys. We can't pronounce 'Hs.' So I try to rephrase sentences so that I don't have to start a sentence or a phrase with an H. Otherwise it is hardly noticeable."

Col. Fitzgerald has done "yo-man" work with other laryngectomies and also for the American Cancer Society. He represented the society at its White House kickoff ceremony in April 1956 when he presented the ACS Sword of Hope to President Eisenhower. He has made television appear-

SEEN IN STATION WAGON

Gresham Slaying Probe Narrows to Lone Suspect

The search for the knife slayer of an Atlanta telephone company manager Thursday centered upon one suspect, police said.

Homicide squad detectives said the man could not be located immediately. They expressed belief that he had left the area.

The suspect was reported seen Sunday in possession of a station wagon similar to that owned by Wylie O. Gresham Jr., 36, whose body was found Monday in his apartment at 301 Ardmore Cir., NW.

Mr. Gresham had been stabbed twice in the chest. Investigators said those who saw the suspect and the station wagon were positive that the vehicle was Mr. Gresham's.

Meanwhile, four rolls of color film found in the Gresham apartment were processed and shown on a projector at police headquarters.

Part of the film was devoted to a vacation which Mr. Gresham took in Florida and showed the husky 200-pounder swimming in pools in the Miami resort area. The remainder depicted snow and ice scenes in the recent ice storms here.

Officers said they had not been able to identify all those shown in the films. But they expressed doubt that the identities of the persons shown would shed any light on the investigation.

No motive has been given in the slaying.

Times Newsman Von Hartz Dies

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ernest Von Hartz, 56, news editor of The New York Times, died here Thursday after a lengthy illness.

Death was attributed to complications after an operation in St. Barnabas Hospital.

Von Hartz had worked on news desks in Baltimore, New York, Washington and Chicago during a career that covered more than three decades.

He was appointed news editor of The Times in 1952 and was in charge of supervising the coverage and handling of news and directing its display in the paper.

Cities to Get School Melon, Boards Told

Most of the proposed $60 million state school building program will go to the big cities and their adjoining counties, a State Department of Education official predicted Thursday.

Allen C. Smith, director of the division of administration and finance, told a regional meeting of the Georgia School Boards Assn. at Roswell he believes "the money will be spent where the children are."

Smith was one of five panelists discussing technical matters with area school board members at the first of a series of 13 school boards association meetings.

LAW GETS SUPPORT

Strong support of a uniform property valuation law for the state was sounded by the board members as they discussed educational financing problems.

Dr. Judson Ward, vice president of Emory University and chairman of the Georgia Accrediting Commission, said the main value of the accreditation program was spurring the improvement of schools above the minimum standards required by the commission.

R. B. Alford, director of the utilities division of the Public Service Commission, said schools cannot be granted a special power or gas rate because churches, charity and non-profit organizations would press for it.

POWER RULE WAIVED

He said power companies have waived minimum consumption requirements for schools during summer and for the lighting of athletic fields.

Griffin Bell, an aide to Gov. Vandiver, told of bills and resolutions passed by the recent Legislature. Also on the program were William Hasty of the Georgia Education Assn. and W. E. Pafford, director of field services for the State Department of Education.

China Rejects Protest on Cleric

WARSAW (UPI) — Communist Chinese Ambassador Wang Ping-nan Thursday rejected a U.S. protest over the sentencing of Bishop James E. Walsh to 20 years' imprisonment for alleged espionage.

Wang delivered the rejection to U.S. Ambassador to Poland Jacob D. Beam. Since the United States has no diplomatic relations with Communist China, communications are exchanged through their ambassadors to Poland.

U.N. Action In S. Africa Demanded

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI)—The 29-nation Afro-Asian group decided Thursday to demand Security Council consideration of the "mass killings of unarmed and peaceful demonstrators against racial discrimination and segregation laws" in South Africa.

Ambassador Omar Abdel Hamid Atef of Sudan, chairman of the group, said the request would be filed formally Friday with U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, Security Council president for March, for an immediate meeting.

Atef called the action imperative for the peace of the world.

Although the decision normally is made in consultation among the 11 council members, there was a possibility the U.N.'s top security group might be convened this weekend.

Atef said it had not been decided what provision of the charter would be invoked in calling the meeting or what action the council specifically would be asked to take.

Motherwell Gets Life In Slaying

DOWNIEVILLE, Calif. (AP)—Life imprisonment was decreed for Larry Lord Motherwell Thursday by the same jury that convicted him of murdering a wealthy Washington, D. C., widow.

The jury of nine women and three men deliberated 14½ hours and took seven ballots to decide the penalty for the 1958 slaying of Pearl Putney, 72. She was touring the country with the 42-year-old Washington construction worker.

Relief was apparent on Motherwell's face. The jury could have sent him to the San Quentin Prison gas chamber.

"I'm very grateful for that decision," Motherwell said. "I feel better now."

He has insisted from the start that he is innocent and his Washington lawyer, John T. Reges, said he would appeal.

Superior Court Judge Warren Steel said he would pass sentence April 4.

The state's case against Motherwell was circumstantial. Mrs. Putney was last reported seen alive with Motherwell in Marysville, Calif., on Aug. 15, 1958. Bones identified as hers were found in a remote Sierra canyon near here on Aug. 16, 1959.

The prosecution charged that Motherwell had taken her up into the mountains and killed her. It was brought out she had been induced to turn over to him thousands of dollars.

Motherwell was arrested in Atlanta, Ga., last August.

West German Comeback Credited To Erhard---and Marshall Plan

FRANKFURT, Germany (UPI)—A man and a plan are given most of the credit for West Germany's fantastic comeback from utter defeat in 1945 to one of the world's highest standards of living in 1960.

The man was Ludwig Erhard, economics minister and vice chancellor. The plan was America's Marshall Plan. One without the other, most economic experts agree, would not have produced Germany's swift recovery.

The story of Germany's economic recovery began in 1948, when the Allies, on Erhard's recommendation, ordered the reform of the inflated German mark.

It was the same year that Erhard took one of the impudent risks for which he is known—he lifted rationing and price controls.

That was only three years after Germany had been beaten to the ground, with poverty everywhere and hundreds of thousands still living in the basements of bombed-out ruins.

There was a crisis at first but eventually Erhard's firm belief in free economy won the day. It took a year for him to prove his point, a year in which the value of the mark dropped by more than four-fifths and reserves of food and manufactured goods ran out, and a year in which demonstrators could be seen marching through the streets carrying banners reading, "to the gallows with Erhard!"

In a year, however, goods appeared back on the market, and industry, supported by drastic tax reductions, began large-scale production programs.

It was at this time that Marshall Plan help was granted Germany and this invaluable aid gave Erhard the foundation he needed.

In 1956 Erhard said, "I do not need to make any promises. I have already fulfilled them in advance."

AF Giving Up Bomarc as Obsolete

(Copyright 1960, The New York Times Co.) WASHINGTON—The Air Force proposed to Congress Thursday a drastic cutback in development funds for the Bomarc air defense missile on the grounds it was becoming an obsolescent weapon.

Congressional sources reported that Gen. Thomas D. White, Air Force chief of staff, said the Air Force had decided to reduce its request for Bomarc funds in the coming fiscal year from $420,000,000 to $50,000,000.

The reason given for the reduction, according to these sources, was "changing military requirements" brought about by the Soviet shift from manned bombers to intercontinental ballistic missiles.

Vandals Slash Sign At Church

A canvas sign announcing a Lenten School of Prayer was slashed with knives, and two stone benches were broken Wednesday night at the Episcopal Church of Our Saviour.

Father Roy Pettway, rector of the church at 1068 North Highland Ave., NE, said the church property was vandalized after the evening session of a School of Prayer, which is being conducted this week by Father Joseph, an Episcopal monk of The Order of the Poor Brethren of St. Francis.

Father Pettway said he had "no idea why anyone would want to desecrate either the sign or the stone benches, which were placed in the church yard for the convenience of people waiting for buses in front of the church."

However, the rector said that a month ago, after he testified in favor of the rezoning of the Eggleston Hospital property, he received an anonymous phone call from someone who threatened to bomb the Church of Our Saviour. This was one of a number of hostile phone calls received at that time, he said.

ARCHITECT'S DRAWING OF NEW SW ATLANTA CENTER PLANNED FOR COUNTRY CLUB SITE

Zoning Is Okayed for $12 Million SW Center

Atlanta's aldermanic board has approved the zoning for business of the site of a new $12 million shopping center in southwest Atlanta.

The new center, Greenbriar, is to be located on the Meadowbrook Country Club tract—formerly known as Blackrock Country Club on Campbellton road, SW. Initial planning, design and research is underway, but it will be two or three years before construction is complete.

John C. Portman Jr., Atlanta architect and businessman, is co-developer of the tract with Trammel Crow and W. R. Hawn of Dallas, Tex.

The shopping center will be developed in conjunction with a 300-home residential development which is already underway on a 200-acre tract adjoining the site of the 70-acre shopping center. The residential section is known as Continental Colony.

The residential area will be screened from the shopping center by several lake areas and wooded knolls and by a buffer strip of garden apartments. Developers of the center are counting on the completion of expressways and other roads to bring in a great number of the shoppers.

Cave-In Dries Well In Unadilla

UNADILLA—This Dooly County town's 50-year-old 200-foot city well caved in Thursday, leaving 1,200 residents without water.

Schools were closed for the day and some businesses were shut down. National guardsmen were sent from Atlanta and Columbus to try to restore the water supply.

Dooly County Civil Defense Director Ralph Daemmer said water service was expected to be restored by Friday morning.

He said city water crews went to work immediately trying to bring in water from an abandoned well and from an old Southern Railway well.

National guardsmen are to set up pumps at nearby creeks to supply the town with water. Daemmer said purification technicians from the State Health Department will be brought in.

The town well apparently started caving in about 3 a.m. Thursday after the pump was taken from the well, repaired and lowered back into position.

As soon as it was cranked up again, the pump began to move sand instead of water, Daemmer said. "We kept thinking it would start pumping water, but it just kept throwing up sand."

How to get the $200 billion needed for better plants and tools in the Sixties — without inflation!

The soaring Sixties will see America's population increase by 23 million people — enough to fill 15 cities the size of Boston.

More people need more of everything...

This calls for better ways of making things—for better tools, processes and plants of every kind.

It has been estimated that 65% of our industrial equipment doesn't measure up to today's competitive standards. Billions of dollars will be required for this modernization; in fact, the total plant modernization cost for the Sixties could top $200 billion.

How do we provide this money without causing further inflation?

First—by stepping up our savings. Most of us think of our savings in a personal sense—something we do just for ourselves and our family's future. But the money we put into life insurance and other forms of saving represents much more than this.

These dollars are invested to help finance the tools and factories our expanding economy requires. And because the dollars we save are dollars we don't spend now, they help curb inflation.

Prudent government spending will also help preserve the purchasing power of the dollars we save. And these stable dollars will build more factories and provide more of the new equipment we'll need in the Sixties.

All of us can help in this effort by letting our representatives know that we expect government to live within its income. This may mean that some projects, however desirable, may have to be reduced or postponed...

...or taxes increased to pay for them.

As we step up our savings and insist on prudent government spending, we can enjoy the greatest growth we've ever known. And we can provide for the better plants and tools we'll need—without inflation.

Brought to you in the interest of every American who is concerned with preserving the value of the dollar

Census Takers A Paper Army

By HUNTER JAMES

It was instruction time at the First Presbyterian Church Thursday for crew leaders in Atlanta's 1960 census.

After observing the session for an hour, it became apparent that a census taker—be he head counter or crew leader—needs three things: brains, fortitude and paper.

And probably the most important of these is paper.

DETAILS BEWILDER

The chairs and tables of the classroom were laden with it... manuals, listing charts, training books, each designated by F-243, F-214, PH-1, PH-2 and so forth.

Ralph White, the instructor, needed the talents of a statistician and parliamentarian to keep everything in order.

His students were the best that could be found for Atlanta's population count, but even they were having trouble.

The session was exhaustive and each new subject seemed more bewildering than the one before.

"HOPELESSLY LOST"

Every few minutes, a student's eyes would go blank and his mouth would fall open.

A man in the corner kept putting his sunglasses on and taking them off, his lips held in an expression of utter despair and disgust.

White got to talking at one point about a crew leader's procedure for checking up on his enumerators.

"I'm hopelessly and completely lost," a woman cried. "Is anyone else lost?"

"I'm lost, too," another said. "Here, too."

The man in the corner took his sunglasses off.

"You don't have to remember all this," White said. "It's all in section E, appendix E of your manual."

There was a feverish movement of hands along the table. Everyone was looking for:

1. His manual, or
2. Appendix E.

BOOK CITED

White brought up another complicated point of procedure. "It's all in your enumerator's training book," he said.

"Which one is that?" someone asked.

"You haven't got it yet," White said.

The man in the corner put his sunglasses on.

White began to discuss another point, how to list any person born since 1950. A woman said:

"Well, we're back to F-243—Really!"

"I'm going hysterical in a moment," another said.

Finally the session was over. And White said: "Now, you have it; if you don't remember everything, you can find it in appendix E."

And everybody laughed and sighed and moaned, and the man in the corner adjusted his sunglasses.

Dog Attacks Woman, 7 Children

"James didn't have a chance to run. The dog knocked him down and began chewing him, shaking him."

Mrs. Velma Lee Brock, James' mother, said she saw the dog attacking her son, grabbed up a stick and beat the dog off.

LIKE A LION

"He reared up on his hind feet and attacked like a man or a lion," she said.

The Brock youth was bitten about the legs and abdomen.

Vern Hammond, 9, Negro, of 127 Cain St., NE, was admitted to Grady with injuries about the face, arms, back and hands after being attacked by the dog near his home, police said.

Others treated at Grady included Avon Jones, 10, Negro, of 374 East Ave., NE, attacked on Dunlop street, NE; Willie Joe Wilborn Jr., 2, of 103 Fort St., NE, bitten on the face and back of the head.

Andre Johnson, 5, of 350 Cain St., NW, bitten on the face and right hand; Sharon Corry, aged 2, of R323 Forest Ave., NE, bitten on the face; Sherry Johnson, 349 Houston St., NE, bitten on the right side of the face.

WOMAN BITTEN

Mrs. Janice Moore Myers, 28, of 554 Washington St., SW, said a dog of similar description flew at her on Crumley street at Washington street, SW, and bit her on the chest.

Mrs. Myers' husband, Herman Myers, beat the dog off.

Sgt. C. B. Dickerson said he talked with dozens of persons who saw the big dog in action and in each instance they said the dog lunged for the face of its victims.

"I never saw anything like it," Dickerson said. "He moved so fast he was always gone before we could get into the section."

SHOTS RECOMMENDED

Dr. J. A. Giddens, director of veterinary medical services for Fulton County Health Department, said the dog's actions did not necessarily mean that he was rabid. But he urged the bite victims to report for proper preliminary attention (tetanus shots and wound cleaning) and to contact health department authorities next.

"It's hard to diagnose a case you hear about," said the doctor. "But what this dog has done is not a typical symptom of rabies. Usually, rabid dogs take a slow trot and attack anything that moves or crosses their path."

But Dr. Giddens warned bite victims that if the dog could not be identified, confined and observed, their only course was to assume that the dog was positively rabid.

Thursday represented an impressive cross-section of the city's educational, civic, religious, business and professional life.

Other counties sent fewer witnesses, but these often came armed with resolutions from several organizations.

Mrs. Marian Stribling, for instance, reported the results of a poll of nearly a dozen church and civic groups in Habersham. It was heavily pro-option.

DOCTOR STEALS SHOW

Dr. J. C. Dover, who would be a movie casting director's ideal of the laconic mountain physician, appeared on behalf of the Rabun County Board of Education and five civic and PTA groups.

Dover first asked Chairman John Sibley to explain again the local option and private school plans.

When Sibley finished, Dover demanded: "Who'd furnish quarters for private schools?"

Sibley: "The people who send pupils to them."

Dover: "Can't use public property?"

Sibley: "No."

Dover: "Hmph! Thought so."

PRODUCES RESOLUTIONS

Then he produced a sheaf of resolutions backing local option.

Mrs. Charles Graves, mayor of Clarksville, said an open-school petition had been circulated among the businessmen and clergymen of her town. One hundred fifty-four signed and only four refused, she reported.

In Towns County, all parents with children in schools were polled. B. E. Hamilton reported 494 were for local option and 151 for closing.

In view of the fact that Union County has no Negroes at all, it was somewhat surprising that two of four witnesses supported closing schools.

ACTS ON CONVICTION

W. J. Murrah said he did because of a "conviction on my part that this is just a part of a larger fight."

"If they're integrated anywhere in Georgia," Otis Pharr of Dacula in Gwinnett County asserted, "then the turmoil starts."

Joe Farmer of Jackson County, who criticized ministers who spoke out for local option, declared, "If one of 'em comes down to my Baptist church we're going to close it."

And Milton F. Towns of Hall County contended that "if all our school teachers were as interested in keeping segregated schools as getting a raise in their salary, we'd have segregated schools."

But the great bulk of the testimony was on the open school side.

"There are no known plans for private schools to take care of these children," Mrs. Paul Plagenas of the Gainesville Junior Service League declared.

Theo Sadler of the Gainesville

Civic League, one of the few Negroes to speak, proposed that "it should be a crime to close any tax-supported institutions."

"Our democracy rests on an intelligent public school system," said the Rev. George Holden on behalf of the Gwinnett County Ministerial Assn.

The Rev. James Nash of the Ball Ground Baptist Church, made the strongest statement of all on the open-school proposition. "I favor open schools and integration," he declared.

Terrell Benton Jr., former president of the Future Farmers of America, said that "the greatest thing I've ever learned in life was a respect for other peoples' opinions."

Teacher Assns.: "She has performed a labor of love. It is a privilege to pay tribute to a beloved superintendent and a fine person."

"We pay a tribute to Miss Jarrell," he said. "Atlanta is a better city and Georgia is a better state because of her work."

"VALUED ASSOCIATE"

Other tributes:

Paul West, superintendent of Fulton County schools: "It is a privilege to appear here. Miss Jarrell has been a valued associate and friend. We have had a close and cooperative working relationship from which both systems have profited."

State Sen. Charlie Brown of Fulton County: "She is a friend of children, parents and teachers, and has served her day and generation exceptionally well."

$27 MILLION BUDGET

Ed S. Cook, who served as president of the Atlanta Board of Education 15 consecutive years: "Under her administration we have established community, co educational high schools, built more than $39 million worth of new schools, increased the budget from $3 million a year to $27 million, and made remarkable progress."

Dr. G. Y. Smith, assistant school superintendent representing the administrative staff: "She has built a living monument and school population has increased from 56,000 to 115,000."

Dr. L. E. Smith, pastor of Park Avenue Baptist Church of which Miss Jarrell is a member: "Love for people, particularly little people, is one of the secrets of her achievements and the secret of her whole life."

"DYNAMIC SPIRIT"

Mrs. Sara Coker, representing the association: "She has a dynamic spirit and matchless enthusiasm."

Eugene Patterson, executive editor of Atlanta Newspapers, Inc.: "Atlanta will miss Miss Jarrell as superintendent."

Mrs. F. W. Head, president of the Atlanta Council of Parent

Special VIGORO

COMPLETE PLANT FOOD

for everything you grow

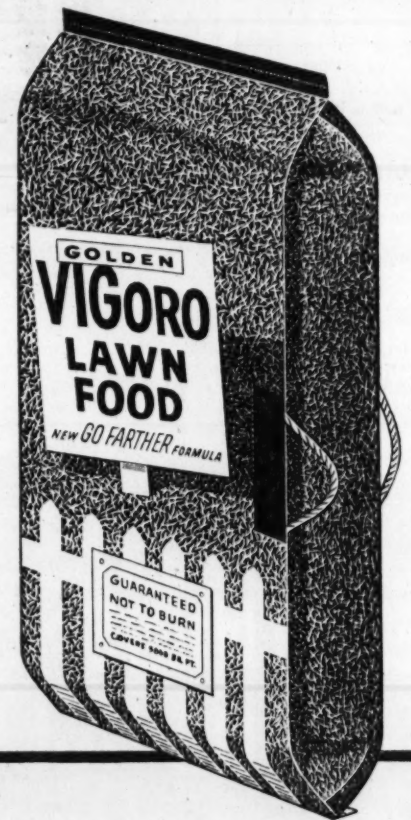

Scientifically balanced formulations custom-made to match the feeding habits of America's most popular lawn, garden and landscape plantings.

If you're an authority on gardening, you know that lawn grasses require a different balance of nutrients than is used for field crops such as corn. And, the needs of flowering plants—such as roses—that make hardy, woody growth are different than those of tender annuals such as petunias . . . or those of flowers that make bulbs or storage roots—such as gladiolus, iris or peonies.

That's why the makers of America's most widely used brand of plant foods have taken the guesswork out of gardening by bringing you specialized plant foods that are made to meet the feeding habits of our most widely grown plants.

The formulas for these new Vigoro plant foods are based on extensive plant nutrition research. They provide everything plants need except sun, air and water . . . put back everything plants take out of the soil to maintain—or improve—soil fertility year after year.

Look for the handy, home-sized packages at all good garden supply stores, variety stores and supermarkets.

THE FOOLPROOF LAWN FOOD IN A BRAND-NEW FORM

Golden Vigoro now is available in a new, Go-Farther Formula. One bag covers a full 5,000 sq. ft. (a big 50 x 100 ft. lawn area). And the handy new bag with a handle pours like a pitcher. Spreader settings on bag.

Macmillan Arriving Tomorrow to Meet Ike

State Department wants to avoid rejection and counter with a compromise proposal.

On Feb. 11 the United States proposed a strictly controlled nuclear test ban on all but small underground explosions. It laid the plan before the Three-Power Nuclear Test Ban Conference now underway in Geneva.

Last Saturday Russia announced acceptance of the U.S. plan — but added a big "if." It proposed a moratorium on even small underground tests while efforts were made to find a satisfactory method of detecting them. Meantime, there would be no inspection system.

Pointing up the problems besetting the Allies, Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev, in Paris, Britain has been pressing the United States to accept the Soviet plan. The United States always has insisted that it will not agree to even a temporary suspension of explosions which defy detection under agreed procedures.

The Eisenhower-Macmillan talks also were announced as the West rejected at Geneva the Soviet concept of controls needed to supervise over-all East-West disarmament. This came at the 10-

2 Convicts End Prison Terror

Rose, said. "They were very considerate. There was no bad language and we made it just fine."

She said the hostages "just sat around and talked to each other and to the convicts." She said Rivera and Farra did not quarrel.

"Everything was very peaceful," she said.

Another hostage, Guard J. W. Trousdale, said "it seemed like it was never going to end. I'd lost hope just when they gave up."

Trousdale said the convicts "never made any threats to kill us all" but that "they were shaking guns close to our face, about three or four inches away." He said Farra was "trigger happy."

State Corrections Commissioner Keith Hampton who signed the agreement with Rivera and Farra and their attorneys, marched out of the sealed tunnel entrance to the compound to meet the hostages. Guards walked up to Rivera and Farra and clapped them in handcuffs. Under terms of the agreement, they were taken to the Davidson County jail.

Assistant Corrections Commissioner Pat Patterson ordered a "thorough investigation" of the two-man rebellion, worst of a series of Tennessee prison uprisings in the past year. He said the pistols "had to be sneaked in from the outside."

Patterson said the two convicts also had a wire coil in the office and early in the negotiations had indicated they had dynamite rigged and ready to explode.

Patterson told newsmen the agreement pertained only to the extent of the prisoners' legal moves, including writs of habeas corpus to be taken to the U.S. Supreme Court if necessary. If these are rejected, he said, the convicts will be returned to the main prison.

Rivera was to be represented by attorneys John J. and Henry W. Hooker of Nashville and Farra by attorney James Bateman, all of whom took part in the negotiating.

The end of the siege came suddenly — moments after Farra made his first appearance outside the stronghold, walking into the compound to talk to Hampton and his attorney, James Bateman.

He conferred with them briefly, shook hands with them. Then as he walked back to the deputy warden's office, Hampton patted him on the shoulder.

The first break in the tension-charged drama—a stalemate for 20 hours—came shortly after noon when Rivera, a 25-year-old Texas bandit, came out with his hands up and walked across the sunshine-bathed prison compound with a prisoner "lawyer," Clifford Cotton, who acted as co-between.

He asked that he be allowed to make a statement to be published in a Nashville newspaper, and assurance was given by the newspaper's executive editor Charles Moss.

Rivera talked to Hampton and Attorney John J. Hooker Jr. at the entrance of a tunnel from the prison's administration building to the compound.

Hampton said Rivera was "very calm and very sensible. He is not the one we're having trouble with now."

"I think the major obstacle was doubt on one man's part as to what will happen when he comes out."

That man was Farra, a West Virginia mountaineer with a long criminal record. He was charged with the abduction of a young couple in a parked car at Williamson, W. Va. He held them hostage for three hours, forcing them to strip and took their clothes.

Being pursued by police, he staged a similar abduction of a man and a girl in Tennessee. He was captured in Kentucky, turned over to Tennessee and sentenced to life.

Rivera, a dark-haired dark-eyed man of medium build, is from Temple, Tex., and escaped from a Georgetown, Tex., jail with five others in 1956. He was sentenced to 40 years for the robbery of a Dover, Tenn., motel and the kidnaping and wounding of a Tennessee patrolman.

Rivera talked with the officials at the mouth of the tunnel which is sealed with a thick, 1,000 pound steel door. The compound itself was ringed with 200 police with rifles, machine guns and gas grenades.

gling with him before the May summit conference.

White said while Khrushchev also was to blame for promoting the "hoax," the East German Communists had done the "principal tub-thumping."

The question whether the Soviets can declare West Berlin on Communist East German territory has assumed critical importance. This is because Khrushchev has said that if the Allies fail to agree to settlement of the Berlin crisis and reunification of Germany on Russia's terms, the Kremlin will make a separate peace treaty with East Germany and hand over to the local Reds control over the allied access routes to Communist-encircled West Berlin. The Allies refuse to recognize East Germany.

The United States and its allies reaffirmed in Thursday's declaration that they are in West Berlin under a conqueror's agreement with Russia, and that the Soviet Union cannot relinquish its responsibilities.

Officials said the chief purpose in releasing the photo copies of the wartime agreement and in challenging the Communist argument at this time was to set the record straight before the Big Four summit meeting in Paris in May.

The allied protocol creating special occupation zones for Berlin was signed in London on Sept. 12, 1944 by Britain, Russia and the United States. The Big Three later carved out their individual zones and when France was restored as an operating government, the United States gave her part of the American zone.

The state department charged Germany with "endeavoring to implant through various propaganda means the notion that Berlin is 'part of' or 'on' the territory of the zone of occupation allocated to the Soviet Union and hence 'part of' or 'on' territory of the regime in East Germany."

The protocol published Thursday was signed by F. T. Gousev, then Russian representative on the European advisory commission. U.S. ambassador to Britain John G. Winant, the U.S. representative on the commission, signed for this country.

Blended Whisky, 86 Proof, 65% Grain Neutral Spirits • Schenley Distillers Co., N. Y. C.

How an exclusive discovery whips extra smoothness into Schenley whisky

This is a photo of the greatest advance in whisky blending in 25 years. Taking the same fine whiskies always reserved for Schenley, we now put them through a completely new and costly blending step. They are whirled in a specially-designed vat by stainless steel blades rotating at a constant speed and literally whipped into a smoothness never before attainable. By this unique process, the ingredients used in making a fine whisky can be "married" more completely because they are broken down into the smallest possible components. The result can only be realized by tasting Schenley whisky. When you do, we think you'll agree that smoothness in a whisky now takes on an entirely new meaning.

Symington Tosses Hat Into Ring and say whether he would make the race, Symington said.

He would be honored to have Kennedy as his vice presidential running mate, Symington said, but he indicated he was not interested in second place on the Democratic ticket.

As for his battle plan, Symington declared he does not intend to campaign in any primaries, although his name has been entered in Oregon.

He noted there are contests in only five state primaries involving 106 of a total of 1,521 convention delegates.

The only other major announced candidate on the Democratic side is Sen. Humphrey of Minnesota, although Sen. Morse of Oregon has entered several primaries. Sen. Johnson of Texas evidently planned to remain in the available-but-unannounced column, at least for the present.

Symington's formal announcement—setting forth a four-point platform for peace and progress—caused some lifted eyebrows in one respect. He soft-pedaled the defense question, perhaps in an effort to get away from a tag as a one-issue candidate.

PUSHES EQUAL RIGHTS

These are the four points in the Symington platform:

1. Negotiation with the Soviet Union from a position of strength. Symington proposed a worldwide "good trader-good neighbor" policy, an improved foreign service, more realistic economic development in the United States and abroad, and a drive to "tell the truth about America."

2. A "public investment program," as he termed it, covering education, health, slum clearance, highways, water control, and help for elderly and disabled citizens.

3. Steps to "reverse the present trend toward the elimination of the family-size farmer and help him attain a standard of living comparable with other Americans."

4. Programs to guarantee all Americans equal rights and opportunities.

Ending government waste could yield money to pay for such programs, the Missourian said.

Symington, who will be 59 in late June, has been in the Senate since 1953.

Before that, he held a number of posts in the administration of President Truman, who is one of his strongest backers for the presidency.

As I See It Nanette's So Happy It Frightens Her

By PAUL JONES

In the fiercely competitive world of shadows and substance we hardly ever hear of an artist who is dissatisfied with fame—an artist who would much rather have a family than a career.

The egocentrics in showbusiness are usually so busy feathering their financial nests that they don't have much time to feather their domestic nests.

But, unless we have been bilked by some cleverly phrased propaganda, Nanette Fabray, the livin' doll who is a three-letter girl in show biz—singer, dancer, comedienne—would rather be loved, loved, loved and have babies than to work, work, work and make money. (She's on the TV Awards show Friday night at 8:30—Ch. 2.)

In fact, since she left the Caesar show, Nanette says she is so happy that she is frightened. And don't you think for a minute that that isn't a serious predicament.

"I'm so happy all the time it frightens me," says luscious Nanette. "I love the baby and when you're waited until you're 38 to have one you can imagine your feelings about it. All those years I put in as a performer weren't wasted but I never felt fulfilled."

Nanette, it might be pointed out here, is married to Randy McDougall. She inherited some kids, and she has only one of her own.

"Now I work when I feel like it. I don't have to and I don't get very excited about it. I have much more fun with my family. I've really had so much love to give. Both my husband and I were married before, as you know, and neither marriage worked out. Randy is a dour Scot and always found it hard to be demonstrative about affection."

"We were riding with our son one day and suddenly he turned to the boy and said: 'God, how I love you.' and they embraced right in the car. When the boy came home he ran to me and told me how much he loved me. Honestly, we're in love with each other."

"It sounds so stupid, but you know that if you have someone to give your love to, and really give it, you're bound to be happy."

We just hope that she will be able to overcome this fright about her new found happiness and that she will be able to relax and enjoy it.

BUGS BUNNY will be plugged right between the rabbit ears Sunday.

It's being preempted, for once only, for a civil rights debate between Sen. Herman Talmadge and Sen. Kenneth Keating, of New York. The program has been taped and will be offered in this area on WAGA-TV, starting at 6:30 p.m.

THE CONTROVERSIAL "Race Into Space" film, which includes some exclusive shots of the Russian missile program, will be offered on Channel 5 beginning April 27. This is the film which was turned down by the networks because, as we understand it, the networks want to control public affairs programming.

This is another of the controversial, independently produced television programs which have found ready markets in major cities, where TV stations are presenting such programming on an individual basis.

According to Channel 5, this program will feature "film made in Russia and never before seen in this country."

AWARDS PROGRAMS are usually very tedious affairs. The Oscar and Emmy shows are among the poorest programs presented on an annual basis. The TV Guide Awards program, scheduled Friday night at 8:30 (Channel 2), promises to be very entertaining.

As we have pointed out before, the best way to pay tribute to someone is to roast him with satire. This, TV Guide Awards promises to do. Most of the hour-long show will spoof television.

We'd rather watch them hurl bricks than bouquets, any old day.

REP. OREN HARRIS of Arkansas will be particularly interested in the upcoming census, according to a piece in Variety. The chairman of the committee investigating payola might lose his job if the population falls off as sharply as is expected. Seats in the Congress are based, of course, on the population of the various states.

Senators Talmadge and Keating (R-NY) will debate civil rights legislation on television Sunday.

The debate will be on the American Forum of the Air. It will be carried here by WAGA-TV (Ch. 5) at 6:30 p.m.

Talmadge has been one of the leaders of the Southern senators' filibuster against civil rights legislation. Keating campaigned for his Senate seat on a promise to investigate hate bombing in the South. He visited Atlanta for that purpose during his post-election tour.

TENSE MOMENT AT KILIMANJARO
Robert Ryan and Ann Todd Star in Hemingway Story

Scouting TV Tonight

It's Snows of Kilimanjaro

By THE TV SCOUT
BEST BET—A fine, tried-and-true property and an unusual new production technique are the pluses on the Electra Playhouse offering, "The Snows of Kilimanjaro."

This Hemingway short story, adapted as usual by A. E. Hotchner, is by this time a fairly trite, unsurprising story. We meet the best-selling author in the shadow of Africa's best-publicized mountain, dying from a gangrenous infection in his leg.

In his hallucinations, we meet the women in his past—his first love, his first wife, a casual bar pickup—and learn some of the contributing factors to his disillusionment. His second wife, with him on safari, tries to keep him alive by shooting game and denying him whisky.

There are some powerful scenes here, as well as some tender ones. This is being done live, since the film rights are spoken for. And CBS is using a revolving set (you, the viewer, through the camera's eye, will revolve), paper sets and break-away clothing to permit the necessary quick changes as we flit from present to past and back again.

Robert Ryan is the author, with Ann Todd, Janice Rule and Norma Crane the women in his life, and James Gregory the editor who makes him assess himself. 8:30-10 (Ch. 5).

7:30-8:30 (Ch. 11)—Walt Disney Presents has its last new production of the year. This one is another of the Ellego

Baca series—a more or less routine Western, made different only by the presence of an appealing young boy and the fact that the object of Baca's search is long dead. Brian Corcoran is the boy. You've seen him in four Texas John Slaughter episodes, but this one was filmed first, so this marked his initial TV performance. Robert Loggia (Baca) kept him relaxed by playing cowboys and Indians with him between takes.

House Rights Bill Maneuvered To 5-Day Senate Panel Study

However, the Senate, as expected, voted Eastland's motion down, 72 to 19, on a roll call vote.

Johnson's motion then was adopted, 87 to 5, which means that the bill will in Eastland's committee until Tuesday when it must be reported back to the Senate, where it can be taken up the next day.

Republicans voting for it. Only 15 Republicans and 94 Democrats, mostly from the South, voted against it.

At the end of that time the Senate went through the motions of beginning a new legislative day, even to the daily prayer by the chaplain, and then Johnson had the bill read the second time.

The Georgian said, however, that in swapping the House bill for the Senate version, he felt that it was "just like swapping the devil for the witch."

Southern senators, who have been talking against the Senate's own civil rights bill for more than five weeks, are certain to continue their fight against the slightly weaker House version.

However, Northern radicals and moderates have the votes to pass the bill and are expected to do so within two, or possibly three weeks.

Cloture may have to be invoked one or two times to stop the Southern debate, but the civil rights advocates showed Thursday they have the votes to do this, too.

A two-thirds vote is required to cut off debate, and this would take 67 votes if all members were present. There were 72 votes cast against the Southerners on Eastland's motion Thursday, with the 18 Deep South senators picking up only one Western vote—that of South Dakota's Young, a Republican.

Earlier in the day the militant civil rights advocates showed surprising strength on a vote to substitute a tougher voting rights section for the voting referee proposal in the Senate civil rights bill.

Only by a close vote of 51 to 43 did the Senate reject, on a tabling motion, this plan by Senators Clark (D-Pa.) and Javits (R-NY) to authorize the use of either court-appointed voting referees or presidentially appointed enforcement officers to aid Negro voting in Southern areas.

CANDIDATES VOTE NORTH
On all of the day's roll calls in the Senate, three presidential candidates, Senators Kennedy (D-Mass.), Symington (D-Mo.) and Humphrey (D-Minn.) voted against the South. Sen. Johnson (D-Tex.) voted with the South on the Clark-Javits bill.

Sen. Gore (D-Tenn.), mentioned as a Democratic vice presidential hopeful, voted against the South on the key roll calls, while Sen. Kefauver (D-Tenn.) voted with the South once and against his Dixie colleagues once.

Over in the House there were two roll call votes before the five-point bill was perfected there and sped to the Senate.

Rep. Poff (R-Va.) sought to recommit the bill with instructions to the House judiciary committee to delete a provision that might make it a federal crime for anyone to write a letter to a newspaper opposing a federal court order on desegregating a school.

Poff's motion was voted down, 304 to 118, and the House then proceeded to pass the bill, 311 to 109, with 179 Democrats and 132

Republicans voting for it. Only 15 Republicans and 94 Democrats, mostly from the South, voted against it.

All of Georgia's congressmen were recorded for the Poff recommitment motion and against passage of the bill, except Rep. Iris Blitch, who was in a Washington hospital and was paired against the bill.

RUSSELL PRESSES
When the House bill got over to the Senate it was immediately given its first reading, and then Sen. Russell forced Majority Leader Johnson into some parliamentary legerdemain to get a second reading.

Russell objected to the second reading on the same legislative day, whereupon Johnson moved to adjourn the Senate for three minutes. At the end of that time the Senate went through the motions of beginning a new legislative day, even to the daily prayer by the chaplain, and then Johnson had the bill read the second time.

This enabled him to make his move later to refer the bill to the judiciary committee with instructions to report back next Tuesday.

By this procedure, Johnson said, the Senate next Wednesday can "proceed to work its will" after a "reasonable period" of five days in committee.

Although Russell voted with Eastland on the substitute motion for uninstructed referral of the bill, he later voted for the Johnson motion to send the bill to the judiciary committee with instructions.

Russell said he did so because this would at least "respect the integrity of the committee system in the Senate" and that he had some faint hope the committee might correct some defects in

Ivan Allen Urges New Negro Homes

An Atlanta civic and business leader suggested Thursday night that one way to preserve segregation here would be to provide adequate housing for the city's growing Negro population.

ASKS HOUSING
Ivan Allen Jr.

"The foresighted people of Atlanta are going to have to have the courage to find decent housing for Negroes," declared Ivan Allen Jr., addressing the Atlanta Women's Chamber of Commerce.

He rated Negro housing as the No. 1 problem threatening the city's future progress. The problem can be solved, he said, if Atlantans will be "broad in our vision and confident in our leadership."

Allen spoke as the Women's Chamber of Commerce staged the "kickoff" for "Keep Atlanta Beautiful Month (April)" at a dinner at the Atlanta Woman's Club.

He called the cleanup campaign "a symbol of the progress and prosperity of the City of Atlanta."

"The progress of a city denotes the cleanup in a broad sense of its aches and ailments," he declared, "for newness, too, is a cousin or a close relative of cleanliness, and although age is not necessarily kin to corruption and dirt, deterioration is."

HITS UNIT SYSTEM

He said Atlanta must furnish the leadership to reapportion the state's county unit system, thereby "cleaning up the old idea in state government that Atlanta is the whipping boy of the country politician."

He said the unit system was "never conceived or created with the idea of permitting minor rural areas to rule" Georgia. "The failure to proportion units in keeping with the shifts of population will eventually destroy not only the good parts of the system but also the system itself," he said.

He cited the Marvin Griffin administration as an example of how government suffers "when misused by selfish men who take advantage of it for their own personal gain."

PANEL OF OFFICIALS

He emphasized that the unit system, like the electoral college of the federal government, could serve a "good cause" in giving "reasonable consideration" to the desires of minorities.

City of Atlanta department heads comprised a panel to discuss the role the city government plays in beautification efforts. It was moderated by Mrs. Patricia LaHatte, promotion manager of The Atlanta Constitution and The Atlanta Journal. Participants were Gordon Moore, building; Ray Nixon, construction; Chief L. Waits Guthrie, fire; Chief Herbert Jenkins, police; Harold Dobbs, health; George Simons, parks; Frederick K. Bell, planning; Stafford Graydon, sanitary; Louis Cook, schools; Karl Bevins, traffic; and Col. Malcolm D. Jones, urban renewal.

By that time, Georgia expects to have in force its own numbering and licensing system, provided for in legislation passed by the General Assembly to gain permanent exemption from the federal act.

The U.S. Coast Guard will begin on April 1 assigning numbers to boats in all states which have not set up licensing systems of their own. The numbering has been postponed in states needing a little more time to install their own systems.

Besides Georgia, these states are Colorado, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, Missouri, New Mexico, New York and Virginia.

The Georgia act sets up three-year license fees of $5.25 to $15.25 for boats powered with more than 10-horsepower engines. The top fee is for boats longer than 40 feet. All under 16 feet get the $5.25 rating.

Perhaps as many as 100,000 boats will require licensing in the state. If the average three-year fee should be $7.75, which is the figure for 16 to 26-foot boats, fees would total more than $250,000.

Owners of fleets of rental boats may purchase licenses at $1.25 each for up to 20 boats and at 50 cents each for all over 20.

The State Game and Fish department will administer the state law. It will give a certificate and a number which the owner must paint or otherwise display on his boat.

Rep. Flynt Challenges Butler On Seating at Convention

WASHINGTON—Rep. John L. Flynt Jr. has challenged Democratic National Chairman Paul Butler's plan for allocating seats and housing to state delegations at the Democratic convention in Los Angeles this summer.

Butler, who has been feuding with Southern Democrats for months, is threatening to put the Dixie states at the bottom of the list for convention accommodations. He plans to allocate seats and hotel space on the basis of each state's financial contribution to the national committee.

Many of the Southern states—the only ones to go for Adlai Stevenson, the Democratic presidential nominee in 1956—are withholding contributions to the party until Butler is displaced as chairman.

"It is my feeling," Flynt wrote Butler Thursday, "that some consideration—in fact, major consideration—should be given to the state delegations whose states voted for the Democratic nominee in the 1956 general election, with first choice to go to that state which gave to the Democratic Party in the presidential election the largest percentage of its total vote."

(Under Flynt's proposal, Georgia would get first choice of convention seating and housing, although the state is about 45th in its contributions to the national party treasury this year.)

"If you are more interested in money than you are in votes for the Democratic nominee," Flynt continued, "then your method of allocation of convention seating and housing is in line with that thought."

"If, however, you are interested in electing a Democratic president it would seem both proper and fitting," Flynt told Butler, "to give some priority to those states which cast their electoral vote for the Democratic nominee in the 1956 general election."

Styles Hint Summer Near

By RAYMONDE ALEXANDER
Constitution Fashion Editor

The thought of summer dresses may send chills up your spine what with the memory of ice and snow still so fresh in your mind. And the last blow of March feeling like anything but the breath of spring doesn't help the thought any. But don't you get caught napping.

As unpredictable as the weather has been, summer will come. It wouldn't be a bit surprising if it moved right in and gave spring a crowding nudge. It may even be fickle enough to by-pass the mildness stage for the complete warm one.

Your security then, is to think about summer dresses. In fact, do a little more than think by planning to include in your wardrobe some from a special showing of original young designs in interesting fabrics.

This special group was collected to take you a variety of places at almost any time of the day with style and authority.

CHECKED GINGHAM

For that well-dressed day in town, you may want the checked gingham with a new version of the surplice front. It comes in town black or brown. Gingham will definitely rise many rungs on the fashion ladder before this summer is over.

Another city-wise design is the black pique with great white buttons. A rounded full tunic stops at thigh-level over a slim underskirt.

Silhouettes are diversified, with the bulk of the collection designed with full skirts or the new flare. In the new flare style is the black and white stripe having its flare emphasized with a waist-slimming solid black vestee that has a double row of tiny black buttons. Its square open neckline and tiny sleeves will be a joy when the thermometer is hovering in the 90s.

SHEATH STYLE

An outstanding sheath style appears in eyelet batiste with an oversize cape collar. The cape neckline is just one of the many neckline interests as the spotlight also falls on the cowl collar, deep squares and surplice styles.

White is outlined with black in a pique dress with a vestee-like bodice. The skirt has a unique pleating detail that gives it width without fullness—figure flattering as well as cooler comfort.

One of the most feminine designs in the entire collection is a pastel cotton with balloon sleeves and schiffie embroidered midriff. Also a dainty organza in white with a pinafore-like bodice in pink and white gingham is the dream dress for cruises and can dance the night away. Gingham circles bounce around the full skirt.

RUN GAMUT

Fabrics run the gamut to include linen, cotton, chiffon and novelty touches of embroidery in the collection. Bon-bon colors of pink, blue, mint and maize in abundance are proof that summer will look pretty pastel.

On Monday evening, Judge and Mrs. Mobley will be hosts at a dinner party for their daughter and her guest, and Mr. and Mrs. Dodd and Clara will also entertain for them at their Paces Valley road residence.

A DREAM IS ABOUT TO COME TRUE for Mrs. John B. Hutchins, for ever since her daughter married a Briton, Kenneth Jenkins, and moved to London last year, she has been planning to visit her.

She leaves on Tuesday to be the guest of friends in Washington and New York before sailing on the Queen Elizabeth on Easter Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Jenkins have just moved into their new home at No. 1 Grosvenor Studios, Eaton Terrace, which, incidentally, is within four blocks of

Connie Mitchell Has Lead Role

An Atlanta debutante, Miss Connie Mitchell, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. William E. Mitchell, will take the leading role in a college play Friday evening before members of the New England Classical Society in Boston, Mass. Mrs. Mitchell will be in the audience, having flown up Wednesday.

Miss Mitchell, who is a member of the junior class at Wellesley College, will play the role of "Helen of Troy" in the presentation of "The Trojan Woman" by the college Greek department. Majoring in Greek, Miss Mitchell told her mother by telephone this week that she was "going to play a Greek goddess with a Southern accent!"

the residence of the Countess Rosse, mother of Antony Armstrong-Jones who will soon wed Princess Margaret. After a brief stay with Mr. and Mrs. Jenkins, Mrs. Hutchins will take a small flat near them for six months. During the time she plans to travel on the Continent and see the Passion Play.

Mrs. Hutchins will return in the early fall, arriving in time to attend the marriage of a couple who met at her daughter's wedding last April in New Rochelle, N.Y. The future bridegroom is Mr. Jenkins' brother, Anthony, and his bride-to-be is Joan Budny, one of Mrs. Jenkins' close friends.

NEWLYWED MR. AND MRS. GREGG LOOMIS are just back from a spring vacation in Nassau where they were guests at the Ft. Montague Beach Hotel. They have taken an apartment at 533 Burlington Rd., N.E., near Emory University where both are in school. Before her marriage in late December, Mrs. Loomis was Florence Bowles of Waynesville, N.C.

T. GORDON LITTLE boarded a jet plane in New York on Wednesday for a two-week trip to Europe.

MARTHA JEAN HAINES arrives today from Gulf Park College to spend the spring vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Willard A. Haines on Muscogee avenue.

Martha Jean will be accompanied by Betsy Broyles, daughter of Dr. Vernon Broyles, who has been visiting Dr. and Mrs. James Thompson at Moss Point, Miss., during her vacation from Westminster.

MRS. McCLELLAN RATCHFORD and her daughter, Mary Alice, will give a tea on Saturday to introduce the former's future daughter-in-law, Betty Jo Wike of Atlanta and Huntsville, Ala., to their Atlanta friends.

The party will be held at the Ratchford home on Rhodenhaven drive, between 3 and 6 o'clock. Miss Wike's marriage to McClellan Ratchford Jr. will take place in Huntsville on April 16.

Mr. and Mrs. Julius Lunsford entertained at dinner for the bridal couple on Saturday evening, with a shower for the future bridegroom afterward.

MRS. LEWIS F. BUNTE will serve as a judge on Saturday for annual scholarship weekend at her alma mater, Converse College.

She will serve with a second alumna, a representative of the college Parents' Committee and two members of the board of trustees.

MR. AND MRS. ERNEST S. DAVIS will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary at a reception at their home from 2 to 5 o'clock on Sunday.

Mr. Davis, a native of Decatur and a resident of Atlanta for 61 years, is a retired building contractor. Mrs. Davis is the former Addie Camp of Cherokee County.

Their children are Miss Edith E. Davis of Atlanta and Mr. and Mrs. Hugh D. Davis of Roswell.

MR. AND MRS. CHARLES WORKMAN JR. are back home after two weeks of island-hopping in the Caribbean. They also visited their good friends, Mr. and Mrs. Roland Goode in Caracas, Venezuela.

SENIOR CITIZEN

'Challenge of the Years' To Feature Swedish Guest

Mrs. Brita Westin of Stockholm, Sweden, will be a special guest when a panel of experts look into the housing problems of senior citizens during Saturday's telecast of "Challenge of the Years."

Mrs. Westin, who is to make a study in Atlanta of housing for the aged, while her husband is studying at Emory University on a fellowship, will compare Sweden's methods of caring for retired people with the program in effect in Georgia. She will be joined by Mrs. Evelyn Hogue, consultant, Fulton County Department of Welfare;

D. W. Huckleba, manager, Harris Homes, a project owned by the Atlanta Housing Authority; Harvey Mitchell, administrator of Baptist Village in Waycross, and Harold T. Ward, administrator of Battle Hill Haven, for a panel discussion.

Miss Dean Dickens will moderate the panel on housing, third in a series of special telecasts sponsored by the Atlanta Chapter, American Women in Radio and Television. The program will be seen at 1:30 p.m. on Saturday, March 26.

Mrs. Hogue will discuss services available through the Welfare Department, including housing referrals, current lists of nursing homes and activities for the senior citizen. Mr. Huckleba, who pointed out that of the 2,300 apartments he manages, 1,600 are occupied by people over 65 years of age, will pinpoint the need for additional rentals for older men and women.

Mr. Mitchell will explain the "highly planned" care offered in the church home group in Waycross. Three plans of housing are provided at Baptist Village. They include apartments, modest homes constructed on the attractive 300-acre plot and facilities for the bed-ridden, retired patient. Mr. Mitchell observed that the aim of the village project is "to offer the utmost privacy... helping to maintain dignity to all who are residents there."

The need for additional nursing homes for the aged will be among problems discussed by Mr. Ward. He pointed out that 75 per cent of the guests at Battle Hill Haven are bed-ridden, and that the new Highview Nursing Home, which will soon be open, will be filled to capacity.

Miss Patsy Nan Moss Is Wed To John P. Cole in Washington

Patsy Nan Moss, daughter of Mrs. John P. Moss of Rome and the late Mr. Moss, was married to John Pope Cole Jr. of Washington at an afternoon ceremony solemnized at the home of the bride's mother.

Boredom and Homesickness
Will Hinder Outer Space Travel

SAN ANTONIO — Heaven knows, I hate to be the one to add to their problems. If Sergeant Hobart M. Craft of Wedowee, Ala., hasn't mentioned it there's no reason for me to put in my oar.

But in the midst of their great hullabaloo hereabouts to be off to the moon or kiting around in outer space, I wonder if they've done anything to conquer air travel's greatest enemy of all—boredom.

Sergeant Craft is one of two men who spent 14 days in a space cabin simulator at the Air Force School of Medicine here at Brooks Air Force Base. He and Sgt. William W. Henderson, 30, of Alice, Tex., were in the elliptical steel tank from 3:15 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 4, to noon Thursday, Feb. 18. The cabin is to be used by the Space Ecology Branch to gather data on the reactions of men to simulated flight conditions and these two men entered it to give it a shakedown test prior to its acceptance from the manufacturer.

They lived comfortably enough, Sergeant Craft told me, and they were relatively busy with reports and all the gadgetry that went with the test. They took turns sleeping but it wasn't good sleep because it was interrupted frequently by the necessity of reporting to the doctors and scientists monitoring the experiment before a television screen outside. Besides, the main ingredient for really satisfying sleep—weariness—was not present. They had commercial television programs to entertain them and they took along decks of cards and some dominoes. But with unlimited time before them these little games lost their zest.

On the whole, the only thing wrong with the voluntary, experimental 14-day session of confinement, Sergeant Craft told me, was boredom. The time dragged without excitement, without drama, without challenge or conflict or change. He wasn't complaining. He knew such a test was necessary and he and his companion, Sergeant Henderson, were up to much longer confinement if it had been necessary. But there was no denying it, life in that space cabin was boring.

That's the trouble with air travel as we civilians know it. After you stop being afraid and the sensation of being aloft has lost the sharp edge of novelty, you begin to chafe under the sensation-dulling, mind-wearying weight of sitting still in a coop, albeit a comfortable, pleasant coop, with nothing to look at for hours. Airliners give you magazines, it's true, and you can talk to your fellow passengers. But a space traveler won't be likely to care for the latest article on Married Love when he's leaving home. (Eight magazines, by actual count, advertise such articles on their cover this month.) And he probably will find another sergeant is not an inexhaustible source of fascinating conversation.

They're plenty excited, these folks here, by the worlds to conquer out there in space. Perhaps man can be sustained longer by a dream than we suppose. But I feel sorry for those men hurtling off to that barren, postmarked old moon in a cabin sealed up so they can't even open the windows to the soft fragrant spring breeze, smell April coming on, hear roosters crowing and see new-washed clothes flapping in the breeze.

Ground travel is satisfying because you move along the edges of other lives. You see people and touch momentarily what engrosses them. But the poor space explorer, eating his dehydrated, test-tube food . . . will he be engrossed in what Gen. Dan C. Ogil called "the magnetism of attainable goals?"

Or will he have sudden recollection that wild plum is blooming, the maples are reddening in the swamp and the blackberries are coming along? Boredom . . . what am I talking about? It's homesickness that may be the space traveler's greatest hazard, homesickness for the first blackberry pie of the season and all the dear, homely things of the familiar old earth.

ROBERT GRIGGS ADDS "CROWN JEWELS" TO BALLET HEADPIECE

He Designs Sets and Costumes From Junk and Castoff Clothes

By YOLANDE GWIN

"Hide everything and lock the bureau, here comes Bob!" That's what his family and contemporaries have said for years about a slim young man named Robert Griggs.

The statement is said in fun, but none the less there are security reasons involved. The said Mr. Griggs borrows everything from bangles to bows and from old clothes to cast off curtains to "create" all the odd and interesting things he makes for his decorating accounts and for sets and costumes for the Atlanta Concert Group.

Currently the concert group is demanding most of his time. Not only is he dancing in the ballet set for March 25-27 at the Community Playhouse but has designed the costumes and much of the scenery.

For a young man who moves in the best junk and garbage circles, Mr. Griggs has become a creative personality and a self-made do-it-yourself figure, out of necessity.

MADE THINGS

"I never had any money, so always had to make things," he confided between ballet rehearsals. "When I was a child growing up I made things out of junk-things like small toys or things for my room. When we had school plays I made my own costumes because I couldn't afford to buy or rent any. Now that I look back on those days I am rather glad, for it gave me a chance to create something and to develop some originality."

"Mother always said nothing was safe around the house. I always alerted all my friends to give me cast-off things and I used everything I could get for designing. I've been a slave to the garbage cans, the junk shops and the second-hand shops. I even made my own patterns. Once I cut one for a pair of 15th century shoes I had to wear in a play."

FIRST PRIZE

A native Atlantan, he received five years' intensive art training at Brown High School and was honored at graduation with a one-man show for the Southeastern Art Convention and won first prize in the Hallmark Painting Competition. Art training was continued with summer work at the University of Georgia's art department. He was awarded a full scholarship to the Atlanta Art Institute, where for the past three years he has continued his training. He is now a designer with Becknell Associates and set and costume designer for the Atlanta Concert Group.

"Cast off beads, earrings and necklaces and bracelets make wonderful crown jewels," he continued. Sewed on velvet they take on an added brilliance behind the footlights.

I do most of the work like this by hand, but I'll admit that for some of the costumes, I've used the sewing machine because seams must be strong.

"It is amazing what some people throw away and it's those things which I gather for my work."

In the forthcoming performances (Friday and Saturday nights at 8:30 p.m. and matinees on Saturday and Sunday at 3 p.m.) there is a winding baroque stairway on backdrop for the light classic ballet numbers based on favorites from Strauss. Mr. Griggs painted it. In the jazz suite, the backdrop is a cityscape. And you've guessed it, it's painted on cloth panels from a junk house.

Hot Cross Buns Still a Tradition

By PATRICIA DEATON

An ancient tradition, older even than the Olympic games, still enjoys a popularity in modern days. What is this tradition of old—why, nothing more than those Hot Cross Buns that the entire family relishes.

England is responsible mostly for carrying on this age-old custom. Mrs. Alec Robertson of England explains, "Hot Cross Buns are a familiar sight on Good Friday, in England. You'll find these buns being sold in the streets," she says, "so, no one ever bothers to make them." Mrs. Robertson then recalled, "Crosses are indented in the top crust of these sweet buns after heating, butter is tucked into each bun."

Mrs. Walter Aycock, a native of England, says, "I always bought them. I have tried to bake them," she openly admitted, "but I didn't have much success."

"We wouldn't miss having Hot Cross Buns on Good Friday, either for breakfast or tea in the afternoon," states Mrs. Reginald Mitchell. "I suspect that most of us in England eat them. It's a very old custom, though, I'm sure."

The history of Hot Cross Buns dates back to the ancient Greek and Roman days. This bread was marked with a cross, and eaten at public sacrifices.

This custom, in fact, was practically universal and the early church adopted the pagan practice.

English hot cross buns are more spicy than those found here. Fruit peel is sometimes added, but icing crosses seem to be unheard of in England. "It is interesting to know," informs Mrs. Mitchell, "that instead of using an icing, the buns have a cross indented into the bun before baking."

1 well beaten egg
3½ cups sifted enriched flour
¾ cup currants
½ tsp. cinnamon

Soften yeast in lukewarm water. Combine milk, shortening, sugar, salt; cool to lukewarm. Add softened yeast, egg, currants and cinnamon. Gradually stir in flour to form soft dough. Beat vigorously; cover and let rise in warm place till double in bulk, about 2 hours. Form in buns and flatten slightly. Brush top with slightly beaten egg white or milk. Let rise till very light. Using scissors, snip top of buns at right angles to form cross. Bake in moderate oven of 375 degrees for 25 to 30 minutes. While hot, frost lightly with one-half cup confectioners' sugar and 2 to 3 teaspoons water. While buns are warm, make crosses on each with the confectioners' sugar glaze.

'Beatniks Are Like an Iceberg,' Declares British Scholar Here

By BARBARA BRIGHT

American beatniks, like the angry young men of England, are "like an iceberg," a British scholar of the theater has declared.

In the opinion of Glynn W. G. Wickham, head of the drama department at the University of Bristol in England, both beatniks and Britain's angry young men "have produced something worthwhile, but what is worthwhile is the one-eleventh of the entire product above the water. The dross is all that is beneath the water."

Despite the dross, Mr. Wickham said the cries of Kerouac and Ginsberg against the dangers of the democratic state are important.

"They have alerted us to the fact that the individual feels his voice in a democracy is useless . . . having got the vote, he controls nothing with it . . . possession of the vote has reduced him to a cipher and even his protest is useless," he said.

FIGHTING CONFORMITY

Mr. Wickham said the rebels of America and England are also fighting conformity.

"The ultimate danger of conformity is that it may drive the individual — and every person needs to think of himself as different from the mass—to seek difference by artificial kicks, by the use of drugs or through juvenile delinquency. Both these evils spring from an attempt to be different, to get away from boredom and sameness."

While the angry young men of England have brought about a revolution in the British theater, American beatniks have produced nothing as consequential.

Mr. Wickham pointed out that the geographical differences between England and the United States are a reason for the greater force of a minority in England.

SIMILAR THINKERS

"It is difficult for the beatniks to get together here. Their ideas and productivity may affect New York City, but the same group cannot reach similar thinkers in Chicago or San Francisco or Atlanta. In England the whole country can be affected by a small group," he said.

He cited the march of protest against the hydrogen bomb in England, and said a similar protest in the United States would require much planning over a long period of time and much money.

"Marching from Aldermaston to London is far different from marching from Indianapolis to Washington."

Geographical differences also hinder the progress of the new movements in American theater.

DISCUSS REVOLUTION IN BRITISH THEATRE
Wendell H. Brown, Oglethorpe Professor, and Glynn Wickham

ter, Mr. Wickham said. "It is difficult here for people to get together and discuss their mutual problems. Though those interested in the theater are a minority in England, just as here, we can make a lot of noise because we can get together."

SCHOLAR CITED

The scholar also cited the shift of control from "the artistic to the technical unions" in the United States as "crippling" to the American theater.

Mr. Wickham spoke at Oglethorpe University and Agnes Scott College on "The Revolution in the British Theatre" as a visiting scholar in the University Center program. He will speak at the University of Georgia in Athens today.

England's new drama is a protest against "the tyrannies of conformity, apathy and the tolerance of violence," Mr. Wickham said.

The revolution began with the presentation of John Osborne's "Look Back in Anger" in 1954, a drama damned by the press and, ironically, saved by television, Mr. Wickham said.

"The critics damned it, but when the second act was presented on television, the popular audiences began to pour in," he said.

Osborne's second play, "The Entertainer," starred Laurence Olivier, "a guarantee of success with British audiences."

NEW AUDIENCES

The new drama of England was preceded by a re-education period for British audiences, Mr. Wickham continued, influenced by the popularity of ballet, "which got more people into the habit of going to the theater for entertainment," the revival of classical plays, and the importance of radio drama and the rise of word play during and after World War II.

British drama during the inter-war period was "incorrigibly vacuous, bourgeois and frivolous," he said. The plays of Noel Coward and Terence Rattigan were directed toward the "after-dinner" theater audience "who were interested in seeing on the stage reflections of themselves."

A new audience after the war, however, showed themselves ready for the new drama in London's West End, a drama reflecting the thoughts of the proletariat in a welfare state who have opportunities for education, medical care equal to that of the higher classes, but who find the snobberies of society more strict than before the welfare state, he explained.

the American and French schools, adding to it the thinking of Bertold Brecht and Johann Wolfgang Goethe.

COMEDY OF MENACE

England's new dramatists range from the Osborne school, who write about the proletariat, puzzled about what to do with the new opportunities provided him by the welfare state, and the playwrights like Harold Pinter, whose plays are dubbed "the comedy of menace." These plays depict the proletariat as imprisoned by democracy and protest against the tyranny of equality, Mr. Wickham said.

Mr. Wickham, a native of South Africa, received his B. A., M. A. and D. Phil. from New College, Oxford. He has been associated with the department of drama at the University of Bristol since 1948.

Braves Working Overtime on Pennant Blueprint

(This is the 10th in a series on major league clubs in Florida.)

BRADENTON—Chuck Dressen works almost as much as he talks, which means that he is perhaps the busiest major league manager in Florida.

During a typical day at the Milwaukee Braves reservation, you'll find the 61-year-old Dressen conducting a morning workout, directing an exhibition game and holding after-hour classes for ambitious hitters.

Outlar

The Milwaukee rookies had been dismissed after a recent exhibition outing, but some of the stars were putting in extra hours in the late afternoon sun. Dressen gets something extra out of a club because he puts something extra into it.

Red Schoendienst, launching a courageous comeback at 37 after a bout with tuberculosis, was swinging away in the batting cage. Johnny Logan and Joe Adcock were awaiting their turns, and Dressen was dispensing batting tips to Wes Covington.

Satisfied with the operation, Dressen affably paused to discuss baseball in general and the Braves in particular.

Dressen was with a world champion last season, and he makes no secret of the fact that he expects to be with another world champion this year. As a coach with Los Angeles Dressen had an opportunity to observe the Dodgers from close range. He also kept a keen eye focused on Milwaukee and other opponents. He thinks the best team lost the pennant last year. When Dressen's opinions were transformed into headlines, a feud was hatched with the Dodgers.

"I'm not feuding with the Dodgers," Dressen said. "I merely said I thought the other club was better last year. I still do. They were criticizing Fred Haney for the way he handled those two pitchers (Warren Spahn and Lew Burdette) before I came over here.

"But I've been reading things I didn't say written by some guys I haven't even talked to," Dressen continued. "I don't mind backing up anything I say; it's just my opinion. I'm entitled to an opinion like anyone else.

—The 'Best Club' Should Win N.L. Flag

"Now take this business about fundamentals. We've been working out every day just like you see us now. The Milwaukee writers stick close to the scene, and they said they'd never seen a spring training camp conducted like this one.

"Next thing I know I'm reading that I said Grimm and Haney didn't teach 'em anything. Well, I didn't say that. But I did say I thought the Braves should have won. Naturally, I'm glad they didn't. I was with the other club then."

When the Braves and the Dodgers clash this summer no holds will be barred. That was obvious when the Dodgers paid a recent visit here. Walter Alston and Dressen insisted it was just another exhibition game, then shot the works. The Braves won.

There's no doubt that Dressen is the big chief in the Brave wigwam where discipline was lax under Haney.

"The players ran the club when Haney was here," a Milwaukee writer summed up. "Now Dressen is running the players."

"He keeps the players on their toes," said pitching professor Whit Wyatt. "In fact, he keeps the coaches on their toes."

An alert and aggressive band of Braves should pull away from the Dodgers, Giants and other foes in the N. L. derby. They have the horses, and the change in jockey helps.

—Ex-Cracker Cottier Makes the Varsity

There are critics in the front office who feel that the Braves should have bagged four straight pennants. Owner Lou Perini blasted his troops when they lost by a single game in '56. They won the next two years, then lost to L. A. in a playoff last season.

Second base is labeled the trouble spot this spring, but Dressen doesn't seem concerned. Schoendienst has indicated he can handle the job again, and rookie Chuck Cottier has impressed Dressen.

Cottier, graduate of the Cracker class of '58, was an authority on the fielding from the start, and he's now swinging the bat with authority.

"Cottier has looked very good," Dressen said. "I've got him using a heavier bat, and he's hitting. He'll definitely stay with us. How much he plays depends on how Schoendienst plays."

Ex-Cracker Frank Torre and Joe Adcock shared first base under Haney, but Dressen has other plans.

"Adcock can beat you on any pitch by hitting the ball out of the park," Dressen said. "The other fellow hits line drives. Right now I'm figuring on playing Adcock more."

OUTLAR

★ Sports Editor ★

The Braves will go to post with virtually the same star-studded cast, featuring Ed Mathews in the infield, Hank Aaron in the outfield and ageless Warren Spahn on the mound.

Mathews, who bombed 46 homers, knocked in 114 runs and belted .306 last year, appears headed for an even greater season. Aaron, leading hitter in the majors with a .355 average, will be gunning for his third N. L. batting crown.

Catcher Del Crandall, 15 pounds lighter, figures to boost his .257 average, and outfielder Wes Covington seems healthy again after missing the last month with an ankle injury.

Spahn, winningest southpaw in N. L. history, entered the 20-game circle for the tenth time last year. You can't prove by the hitters that he'll be 39 next April. Dressen says he'll give Spahn more rest, but the Brave ace prefers to work every four days.

Spahn, Burdette, Bob Buhl, Bob Rush, Juan Pizarro, Carlton Willey and Joey Jay are on the starting line, and ex-Cracker Don McMahon heads up the bullpen.

"I'm looking for one more relief pitcher," Dressen said, "and right now Ken MacKenzie, who was with your Atlanta club once, looks like he may be the man."

"Our pitching should be better this year," Professor Wyatt said. "Wyatt is more impressive than I've ever seen him in the spring. Pizarro is coming along and Buhl looks sound. And, of course, there's only one Spahn."

In fact, the Braves look better period. Dressen will be with another world champion . . . if the best club wins this year.

Berg Second In R.C. Open

By JACK WILLIAMS

COLUMBUS, Ga.—Three

unheralded pros who didn't draw a whisper of mention in pre-tournament speculation shot par 72s here Thursday to share the first round lead in the annual R.C. Cola Open.

While the favorites stumbled on the tricky Columbus Country Club

Course, the honors went to Bonnie

Randolph of Naples, Fla., Betty

Jameson of San Antonio, Tex.,

and Joyce Ziske of Milwaukee,

Wisconsin.

This trio came charging home late on this warm, sunny afternoon to overtake veteran Patty

Berg of St. Andrews, Ill., who had fired a 73 and looked for a long time like the leader.

Surprising Gloria Armstrong

of Oakland, Calif., ranked fifth with a 75, and four players shot

76s to stay in strong contention.

This group includes Marilyn

Smith of French Lick, Ind., Mary Lena Faulk of Thomasville, Ruth Jensen of Seattle, Wash., and Wanda Sanches of Baton Rouge, La.

Atlanta's great Louise Suggs rounded out the top 10 by opening with a 77.

It was a bad day for the favorites, blonde Mickey Wright of San Diego and Fay Crocker of Montevideo, Uruguay. Miss Wright, a two-time winner on the current tour, went out in 35, but blew to a 46 on the back nine for an 81. Miss Crocker, recent winner of the famed Titleholders, experienced similar trouble with a 36-43-79.

Defending champion Betsy Rawls of Spartanburg, S.C., was another one who had trouble on the rolling Columbus course. She shot a 79 and will have to stage a mighty comeback to successfully defend her prize.

The field of 45 players goes out Friday in the second round of the 72-hole tournament, one of the richest tournaments on the pro tour, the total purse is $8,000, and first-place money is $1,400.

Of the three leaders, Miss Randolph had the most consistent round, with par 36-36 nines. Miss

Jameson and Miss Ziske had to rally to gain the tie. Miss Jameson went out in 37 and came home in 35 and Miss Ziske shot a brilliant 34 on the back nine after taking 38 strokes going out.

Miss Jameson played in a two-somes with Miss Randolph and caught her partner at the 18th when Bonnie took a bogey five and Miss Betty a birdie three.

Miss Randolph, who credits a new, lighter putter with her improved play, was a marvelous scrambler, firing four birdies, she sank a 30-foot putt at No. 2.

the Chicago White Sox while Killebrew hit his first homer of the exhibition season—a three-run blast that helped the Washington Senators beat Los Angeles 9-7.

In other Florida games, the Pittsburgh Pirates edged the Baltimore Orioles 3-2 in 10 innings and Detroit sent the Philadelphia Phils to their sixth consecutive loss, 9-4.

Celtics Nip Warriors For Series

Heinsohn Tip-in Seals 119-117 Win

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The Boston Celtics won the Eastern Division championship of the National Basketball Assn. Thursday night with a 119-117 victory over the Philadelphia Warriors on a field goal by Tom Heinsohn as time ran out. The win was the fourth in the best of seven Eastern finals and sent the Celtics into the NBA title series against the Western champion.

Heinsohn's winning basket came on a tip-in under the hoop after Boston had put the ball in play from out of bounds with the score deadlocked at 117 and only nine seconds remaining to play.

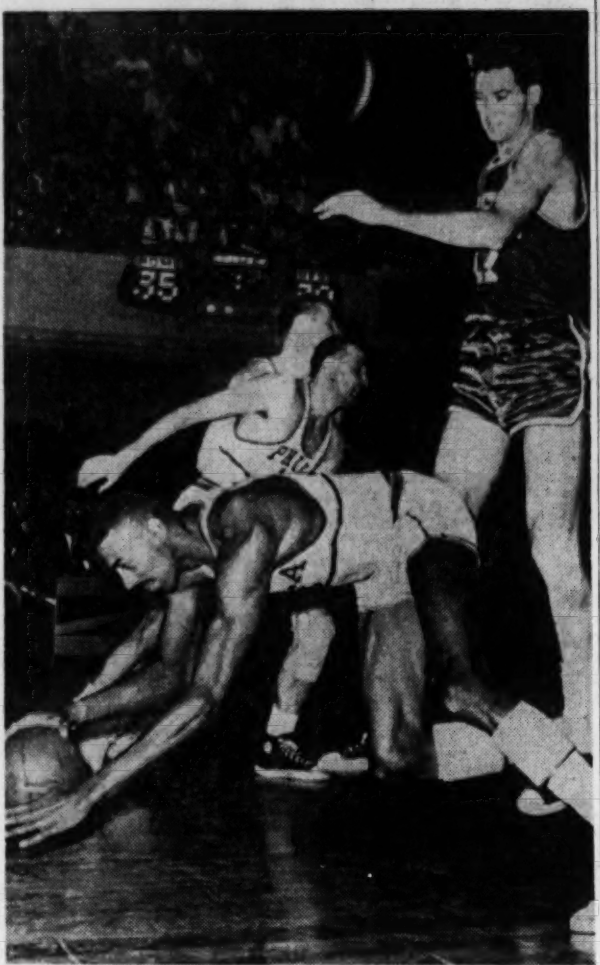

Boston gained possession of the ball after Philadelphia's Guy Rodgers, a sensational performer all night, missed two free throws that could have given the warriors the lead.

The defending champion Celtics trailed at the end of the first period, 33-24, but led at halftime 51-50. The teams were tied at 84 after three periods. Boston, with big Bill Russell and Bob Cousy showing the way, moved to a 95-88 advantage early in the fourth quarter. But the Warriors rallied to tie the score at 98.

From this point it was a give and take contest that saw Boston, five points behind at 110-105, peck away until a pair of fouls by Bill Sharman gave the Celtics a 115-114 lead.

Minneapolis Lakers 117-96 Thursday night to force the Western Division National Basketball Assn. playoff into a seventh and deciding game.

Faced with elimination for the second straight season by the Lakers, the Hawks got great performances from their big front line of Bob Pettit, Clyde Lovellette and Cliff Hagen. The victory smashed the Lakers hopes of duplicating last year's six-game finish.

The graceful 6-9 Pettit poured in 30 points while Hagen and Lovellette each scored 29.

The seventh game will be played Saturday afternoon at St. Louis, the winner to meet Boston, the Eastern Division champion.

Elgin Baylor turned in another superlative performance for the Lakers, posting 38 points.

With Pettit pouring in 11 points St. Louis broke to a 30-19 first period lead and was ahead 56-51 at the half.

GOALBY'S FOUR-UNDER 67 LEADS BALDING IN DE SOTO

BRADENTON, Fla. (AP)—Bob Goalby, a handsome, husky 29-year-old Illinois product playing out of Crystal River, Fla., shot a four-under par 67 to take a one-stroke lead in the first round of the $40,000 DeSoto Lakes Open golf tournament Thursday.

Goalby came in early with his 34-33 over the 6,002-yard par 35-36-71 course and his score stood up despite a determined batter by the best sharpshooters in the business.

One stroke behind him was Al Balding, a Canadian also playing out of Crystal River, and six players were deadlocked in the 69 bracket, including the gallery darling, Sammy Snead, of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va.

Other highly regarded players couldn't quite do it. Ken Venturi of Palo Alto, Calif., hit 72, as did Joe Campbell of New York City, Jack Fleck of Los Angeles and Walter Burkemo of Franklin Hills, Mich. Large George Bayer of Lemont, Ill., came in with 73, as did burly Mike Souchak of Grossinger, N.Y.

Arnold Palmer of Ligonier, Pa., the hottest player on the circuit, was in a good position with a par 71, and Dave Ragan, consistent youngster from Orlando, Fla., who won the one-day Seminole event Tuesday, came in with a snappy 70. National Open champion Bill Casper of Apple Valley, Calif., also was in the 71 bracket, as was Jack Burke of Klamath Lake, N.Y.

Richert Wows Boss Walker But His Crackers Lose, 3-0

Hodges, Moon and Demeter
Play for Atlanta in Defeat

By CHARLIE ROBERTS
Constitution Sports Writer

VERO BEACH, Fla.—Rube Walker is like the kid in a candy store. Everywhere he looks he sees something he wants.

With the kid it's candy. With the freshman Atlanta baseball club manager it's usually a pitcher he believes can help his Crackers become contenders in the 1960 Southern Assn. pennant scramble.

Quiet, determined Walker, who eats, sleeps and lives baseball 24 hours a day, found himself another boy for sports writers to write home about Thursday as his spring exhibition charges suffered their first shutout at the hands of Class AAA Spokane, 3-0.

official Cracker roster were short-stop Gary Smith and second baseman Jerry Webster.

That's what Williams was doing on the mound. Dodger pilot Walt Alston wanted him tested by some big league hitters. Instead, the 6-4, 235-pound right-hander tested Hodges, Moon and company, letting them down with three singles, walking none and striking out eight.

But everybody, including Walker, was talking more about the sparkling Richert, who whiffed four, free-passed three, after it was over.

For the Floral Park, N.Y., Nifty had Williams locked in a scoreless knot until the sixth inning when scratch blows by Tim Harkness and Demeter, veteran Tony Roig's one-baser to left and two errors accounted for the 3 runs (all unearned) scored by Preston Gomez' Pacific Coast Leaguers.

"Whoee, that Richert really showed me something," beamed a bug-eyed Walker. "They gave him to me for the day off the Macon (Sally League) roster so I could take a look. And what a show he put on.

"He threw hard—no, I don't mean harder than Tommy Wells, Terry Barber and Lenny Schnittker did against St. Paul the other night—had a good curve, too. He kept his breaking stuff low and was as effective against the right-handers as the lefties."

Richert, signed to a Victoria (Texas League) contract by Al Campanis after 1958 high school graduation, fanned 215 batters.

TRAINING TIDBITS — Jerry Waring, general manager, was to fly into Vero Thursday night for a look at Walker's club. . . . Charlie Spell, a right-hander whom He's Peter Gerard Richert, a 20-year-old with a golden left arm and 388 strike outs in 356 innings in his first two seasons of professional competition.

Losing while doling out five hits, three of them of the scratch variety, in Thursday's seven-inning wrangle was no disgrace. For four of his Spokane foes are on the parent Los Angeles roster. And the fellow who outduelled him is Stan Williams, an established performer for the world champion Dodgers.

The so-called Atlanta line-up read more like a Who's Who in Los Angeles baseball—Gil Hodges, Wally Moon, Don Demeter, Sandy Amoros and lesser lights Joe Pignatano, Earl Robinson and Don Miles. Only starters on the

There were no exceptionally long puts for Miss Jameson, but she, too, did a lot of scrambling.

She opened with birdies at the first and third holes, but bogeyed the fourth, sixth and ninth. On the short, par three ninth, her tee shot sailed over the green and fell into a drainage ditch. Officials ruled she could drop the ball over her shoulder without taking a penalty stroke. She got a four.

Then on the back nine, she was even par until the 18th when a great four-wood shot put her within four feet of the pin. She sank the putt for a birdie and the tie.

The story of Miss Ziske's round was the 34 on the back nine, best nine-hole score of the day. On the front nine, she had missed a total of six for the day.

But she recovered to shoot four birdies on the back nine. Her longest putt was a 15-footer at No. 17.

COURAGE! HENPECKS, BACK-SEAT DRIVING HELPS

By AL THOMY

Dottie Parks is proud of her back-seat driving, and Paul Parks is one husband who appreciates a few helpful hints from the wife.

Al Thomy

Fact is, they use this age-old system to enrich the family till. Dottie doesn't exactly sit in the back seat. She mans a station in the stands and broadcasts information to Paul, who sits in his 1960 Ford and whirls around raceways of the nation.

The husband-wife radio team will be at Lakewood Sunday for the 100-mile MARC race.

"It took us three years to perfect our radio communication," Dottie was saying Thursday. "There are a lot of bugs that had to be worked out. I understand that 10 drivers used radio systems in recent races at Daytona, but very few of them worked consistently. We have no trouble at all with ours."

One of the working sets at Daytona belonged to Cracker Jack Smith of Atlanta, who credited his strong showing to the direct line to the pits.

Late in the race, with Bobby Johns of Miami wheeling to the front, Smith was contacted over the radio by Johns' pit crew and requested to air-low his Pontiac stablemate home. It worked until Johns spun out with eight laps to go.

The hookups do not always work out to perfection, as Dottie Parks will testify.

"Last year I plugged the set to the wrong outlet and talked for a half hour before I realized Paul did not hear a word I said," she smiled. "Every wire in the set burned."

To say that Paul and Dottie are a couple dedicated to racing would be putting it mildly.

"The day we were married, we rushed right out from the wedding to the race track," she said. "Paul was supposed to run that night but his car wasn't ready and he couldn't start the race."

"And in February, I spent my anniversary on top of the Parks was recently named "Mr. Race Driver" in a contest staged by a Columbus, Ohio, newspaper. He received 43,610 votes from the racing faithful.

We pause now for . . .

MINUTE PROFILE: Ed Costley, a Cracker at Sebring, Atlanta Costley is entered in the two-day sports car classic at Sebring, beginning today. He will drive his formula junior car Friday and his Elva Mark IV Saturday in the 12-hour endurance run. Though he has no illusions of beating such drivers as Sterling Moss and Ed Rahal, Costley hopes to finish high in his own division.

SHORT LAPS: Size means little in auto racing. Take Rex White and Tom Pistone, two of NASCAR's leading aces. Each is 5-4. Opponents tell you they drive like they were nine-feet tall. . . . Junior Johnson, who won the Daytona 500 in a '58 Chevrolet, is expected to have his '60 Chevy ready by April 10, date of the Virginia 500. . . .

The Rodriguez brothers of Mexico City—Pedro 20, Ricardo 18—will take part in the Sebring race Saturday. Asked how their father, an industrialist, feels about their driving over the world's most hazardous courses, Ricardo answered, "He is afraid for us, but he loves racing as much as we do. He prays much." . . . In 143,960 miles of racing—nearly six times around the earth—Sebring has had only one fatality. Only death in the race came in 1958 when Bob Golditch, Chicago, lost control of his Arnolt-Bristol in the S's, at 2 in the afternoon. Injuries in all the years of Sebring 12 hours can be counted on the fingers of a hand, an enviable safety record.

DR. SALE'S SOLD NOW ON BOWLING CLINIC

Think these bowling clinics are just a waste of time?

Well, Dr. Walter Sale is one who'll disagree with you. He was one of the many Greater Atlantans who took in the AMF Free Bowling Clinic Wednesday and Thursday at five different bowling establishments, and he's glad he did.

For after taking a hint from Jack Aydelotte, who shared the rostrum with Frank Clause, Pat McBride and Esther Woods, Sale fired a three-game series of 195-286-187—668, his best ever Wednesday at Marietta Lanes.

"Jack told me I was bending too soon," explained Dr. Sale Thursday night. His advice helped because I had 10 strikes in a row during that 286 game."

Clause and Woods will remain here and visit all Friday at Triangle Lanes giving instructions.

Mrs. Woods will emcee the exhibition match between the Falstaffs and the Atlanta All-Stars Saturday night at Triangle. The Falstaffs and Stars, of course, also will bowl Sunday night at Broadview Bowl-O-Matic and will give clinics at Belmont Bowl and Lenox Lanes Saturday and Sunday afternoons.

Kirby vs. Chapman Kicks Off City's High School Baseball

Sylvan-Northside Clash
Tops Seven Games Today

By PAUL ATKINSON

Play ball.

At seven different locations around Atlanta, that's exactly what 3-AAA baseball players will do Friday.

They'll all chase defending city and eastern champion North Fulton and western winner Brown. Games begin at 4 p.m., with only Brown idle.

In the West, no one can quite tab a team The team to beat, Brown, Northside, Southwest, Sylvan and West Fulton must all be classed as contenders. Only experience-shy O'Keefe and fledgling Walter George appear out of pennant consideration.

THE 3-AAA SCHEDULE:

West-Sylvan (Tommy Chapman) at Northside (Milton Kirby, Southwest (Don Shi) at O'Keefe (Bobby Haywood). Walter George (Walter Bramlett) at West Fulton (Larry Rakestraw). Brown idle.

East-Bass (David Steed) at Roosevelt (Tony Bowles). Gator (Van Arnsperk) at East Atlanta (Gary Harmon). Fulton (Ken Hudson) at North Fulton (Walt St. John). Murphy (David Guthrie) at Smith (Johnny Tibbets). All games begin at 4 p.m.

In the first day pairings, definitely the Sylvan-at-Northside match is the most important. So the Tigers' Ken Brooker will go with lefty Milton Kirby and Sylvan's Jack Short will counter with another lefty, Tommy Chapman.

Northside has fine hitting balance in outfielders Kaye Ellenburg and Buddy Milton and infielders Britt Madison, Hank Stelljes and Jimmy Ney. Sylvan also has good sockers in shortstop Terry Stephens, first baseman Bob Tuggle and catcher Tommy Roberts, all members, incidentally, of the Golden Bears' State AAA basketball titlists.

The other western games have George at West Fulton and Brown's Strengths-Defense will be good with lineup of catcher Terry Scott, first baseman Gary Tasker, second Hal Oates, third Phil Owen, shortstop Eddie Jordan, outfielders Doug Walts, John Scott and Mike Hartsfield. Hitting will be good also.

Weaknesses—Must come up with No. 2 pitcher to work behind sophomore stalwart Charles Case. Kim King, a freshman, is choice of Crawford Kennedy right now.

Summary—Definitely a contender; could go all the way.

SOUTHWEST: Strengths—Veteran club returns to Charlie Brannon in first base, Buddy Steed, second Larry Hale, third Larry Dean, shortstop Paul Jenkins, outfielders Bob Hale, Roger Landers and Larrywood James and catcher Steve Slay. Slay, Dean, Landers are 30-plus hitters. Defense will be tough, as will be left-hander Don Shi, maybe city's ace moundman.

Weaknesses—Could use more speed, and second-line pitchers. Ken McCurdy and Joe Robinson must come through to back up Shi and right-hander Jerry Brown.

Summary—Here's definite candidate to win it this season; peg 'em no worse than No. 2.

SYLVAN: Strengths—Hitting will be good, with lineup of first baseman Bob Tuggle, second Harry Aiken, third Tommy Peacock, shortstop Terry Stephens, outfielders Tony Miller, Mike Pickett and Ronnie Dodson and catcher Tommy Roberts. Pitching will be sturdy with lefty Tommy Chapman, right-hander Charles Jordan and freshman Lonnie Hendrix, with later addition of lefty Larry White, when he recovers from appendectomy. Defense will be strong also.

Weaknesses—Very few, but loss of slugging Bobby Ansd through graduation will be felt.

Summary—Another contender here, and coach Jack Short could pull one out of the hat a la Ossie Wade.

NORTHIDE: Strengths—Balanced hitting, fielding, and pitching. Brightens countenance of coach Ken Brooker. Lineup will have Jerry Brooks at first base, Hank Stelljes, second; Jimmy Ney, third; Britt Madison at shortstop; and outfield of Kaye Ellenburg, Buddy Milton and Walter Pirkle with Brad Webb catching. Pitching entrusted to lefty Milton Kirby, freshman right-hander Jimmy McMichael, transfer student Allen Hartman and big Charlie Thwaite.

Weaknesses—Inexperience at first, catcher and right field, and pitchers could be better.

Summary—Another of the many contenders... may have all needed to cop the pennant.

O'KEEFE: Strengths—Bud Amster's first lineup will read like this: Bob Fortwood, first base; Bobby Ellersberry, second; Mike Parker, third; Charles Adams, shortstop; outfield of Bill House, Wayne Carey, Bill Hall and Hank Hildebrand and catcher Bobby Reeves. Pitchers will be House, Carey, Hall and Bill Haywood.

Weaknesses—Lack of experience a big hindrance. Loss of pitchers Pete Dalbore and Wayne Shields and catcher David Honea a tough blow.

Summary—Can't put 'em any higher than No. 4.

WEST FULTON: Strengths—Pitching will be strong with Larry Rakestraw and Tommy Alexander, while outfield with lefty Steele, Billy Reeves, Ronnie Folds and Larry Collins could surprise. Catching will be handled by Woody Nichols and Doug Nelson.

Weaknesses—Infield needs added help to go along with returnees Sid Conn and Donnie Edwards.

Summary—Heights to be reached by coach Dave Redford's Owls will depend on ability of Rakestraw and Alexander.

WALTER GEORGE Strengths—Tom Simonton's first lineup will consist of junior first baseman Bobby Thompson, freshman second baseman Ray Shelton and sophomore third baseman Gene Epps, shortstop W. B. Norton, outfielders Tommy Cardon, Lamar Caudill and Ronnie McCord, catcher Buddy Freeman and pitcher Wayne Bramlett.

Weaknesses—Inexperience, of course, will hinder team considerably.

Summary—Team's young, probably too young for tough sub-region, and though now must be pegged No. 7, though late season push could change this.

AFL Fashions TV Schedule; Richey Backs Carolina Loop

Braves Trim Roster by 7

NEW YORK (AP)—The American Football League, scheduled to begin operations next fall, plans a $3,000,000 television package which will feature a Saturday night game-of-the-week. It also will put every game of the league's 56-game schedule on the TV screens, nationally or regionally.

The TV plans, revealed Thursday by Harry Wismer, president of the New York Titans and chairman of the AFL television committee, also calls for black-outs in certain cities where the for the Western Carolina" . . . The Milwaukee Braves trimmed their training camp roster by shipping out seven players, including five bonus babies called up after last season to protect them from the draft. The young prospects sent to the Waycross farm training center for assignment were infielders Ron Hunt, Carl Derr and Mike Sinnerud, catcher Phil Roff and pitcher Dennis Overby. Jack Caffery, who was 8-3 with Austin last year was optioned to Sacramento and right-hander Terry Fox was returned to Sacramento . . . A dispute that had split the Buffalo baseball club on the issue of moving from the International League to the new Continental League was settled.

pro games might conflict with college games.

Wismer reviewed the proposed TV program after Steve Sebo, Titans' general manager, had announced hiring of John Dell Isola, line coach of the National League's Giants for the past three years, as defensive coach and No. 1 aide to Head Coach Sammy Baugh. In addition, he said a tentative 1960 schedule calling for home games on Friday nights and Thanksgiving afternoon, had been approved by the league.

The Titans' schedule has been arranged so there won't be any conflicts, live or on TV, with Giants home games.

DIAMOND STUDS — Branch Rickey said he expected organized baseball to recognize the new Western Carolina League, a class D circuit closely aligned with the proposed major Continental League. "I see no sound reason for them not to recognize the Western Carolina," said Rickey, who is president of the Continental. "We're not asking recognition for the Continental League.
